North Carolina Democrats Angered by Nye Probe

PLAN TO CONTEST RIGHT OF GROUP TO ENTER STATE

Bailey's Campaign Manager and Friends of Victor Hold Conference on Eve of Inquiry.

NOMINEE SEES POLITICAL MOVE

Will Discover Mistake in November, Bailey Declares; Outside Money Is Object of Search.

RALEIGH, N. C., Oct. 12.—(AP)—

The News and Observer will say tomorrow that leaders of Joseph W. Bailey's successful campaign for the democratic nomination as United States senator from North Carolina tonight held a conference to consider contesting the senate campaign funds investigating committee's right to inquire into primary expenditures.

No decision was reached at the conference, the News and Observer will say. Members of the senate committee were en route here tonight to open an investigation tomorrow of the contest between Bailey and the veteran senator, F. M. Simmons.

The conference was held at the home of Judge J. S. Manning, who was chairman of the Bailey campaign advisory committee, according to the paper's story. Others present were C. L. Shuping, manager of Bailey campaign; James S. Poul, Sr., father-in-law of Bailey, and J. M. Broughton, an attorney.

Numerous witnesses had been subpoenaed tonight as Raleigh awaited the coming of the investigating committee.

None of the members of the committee, so far as could be learned, had arrived early tonight.

Among those summoned to testify are Cameron Morrison, former governor, who contributed $2,000 to the Bailey cause; C. L. Shuping, Bailey's campaign manager; H. G. Gully, field worker; James H. Poul, Jr., brother-in-law of Bailey, and telephone and telegraph employees.

The committee was also expected here to inquire into the democratic congressional primary in the ninth district, where Charles A. Jones, republican, incumbent, will be opposed in November by A. L. Bulwinkle, democratic reform congressman.

WILL DO G. O. P. NO GOOD

IN ELECTION—BAILEY

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Joseph W. Bailey, democratic nominee to the United States senate in North Carolina, declared here tonight his title to the nomination was clear, as the senate campaign funds investigating committee in Raleigh on charges of irregularities in his recent primary defeat of Senator F. M. Simmons.

Declaring that outside contributions to his campaign were modest and that funds spent were not excessive, Mr. Bailey said:

"If there are republicans who think the investigation will aid their cause they will discover their mistake on November 4."

Hit by Speeding Auto, Youth Believed Dying

Eugene Johnson, 12-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Johnson, of 1352 Bankhead highway, was probably fatally injured and his 10-year-old brother slightly hurt early Sunday night when the two were struck down at Bankhead highway and Chapel road by a speeding hit-and-run auto, as they were crossing the street.

L. E. Smith, of 80 Grand avenue, a passerby, carried the children to Grady hospital.

On examination it was found that Eugene had sustained a fractured skull, concussion of the brain, a fractured right shoulder, a broken left arm, and many lacerations. Little hope was held for his recovery. His brother James was cut and bruised but not seriously injured.

Steamer Sends Call For Immediate Aid

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The M. day radio station said today it had intercepted signals indicating the Italian steamer Voluntas was in distress off the Azores with a damaged steering gear.

The liner Berengaria later wireless-ed that the Voluntas had requested immediate assistance and had given its position as 42°16 north latitude and 37°43 west longitude, 700 miles from the islands.

Chicago Students Pay Honor to Robert E. Lee

LEXINGTON, Va., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Boys of the north, 6,200 students at Lane Technical school, Chicago, today paid tribute to the war-time leader of the south on the sixtieth anniversary of the death of General Robert E. Lee.

In historical Lee chapel this afternoon L. C. Borland, a graduate of the Lane school and now a student at Washington and Lee University, laid a memorial wreath from the Lane students at the base of Valentine's famous recumbent statue of the Confederate leader.

CRUSHING BLOW DEALT REBELS IN CHINESE WAR

Nationalists See Quick End to Civil Strife After 30,000 Are Killed in Northern Drive.

BY RANDALL GOULD.

United News Staff Correspondent.

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12.—(UN)—Heavy fighting in north-central China has resulted in 30,000 killed and wounded and sweeping victories for the national government forces, dispatches from the war area said today.

Capture of Loyang, strategic city in Honan province, was confirmed and reports from various sources indicated the resistance of the northern forces had crumbled throughout the Honan area.

The Nanking or national government claimed 100,000 northern troops had surrendered, that 60,000 had been dispersed and that the northern army of 250,000 men had been broken up, retreating in a rout. The capture of Loyang was hailed as ending the Honan campaign and clearing the way for the national government forces to enter the Yellow River.

Loyang had been held by Marshal Feng Yu-Hsiang, the "Christian general," as his field headquarters during the civil war which broke out in the north several months ago. It is an important city on the Great Wall, the east-west line of communication between the two major north and south railways.

Feng, in conjunction with General Yen Hui-Shan, organized the so-called northern coalition and sought to establish a government at Peiping. Military support by Nanking troops during the summer, however, and the cooperation of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang, Manchurian leader, caused the break-up of the coalition.

Feng continued to hold Honan province, however, until the campaign during the past few days in which national government forces, led by the Yangtze river and eliminating the last remnants of the Christian general, Chengchow was captured first and then Loyang.

Yen retired to Taiyuan-Feng, his capital in Shanxi, "model province," northwest of Peiping.

The fall of Loyang and establishment of government control in Honan was hailed in national quarters as the end of the civil war. They had previously hailed its end, however, several weeks ago. Afterward hostilities were renewed.

The exact relationship between Young Marshal Chang and Nanking remained obscure, with Nanking asserting Chang had occupied Peiping and Tientsin at its orders, and that he would remain in command in that capacity in chief of the Chinese government armies in a ceremony at Nanking, a move formerly placing him second only to General Chiang Kai-shek, head of the government forces.

Telegraphic and railway communications were virtually restored throughout the country.

Police Raids Fail To Nab Al Capone

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Police squads from the east's attorney's office swept into suburban Cicero early today in an attempt to capture "Scarface" Al Capone, but while they failed to corner the kingpin of the Chicago badlands they arrested 25 men and women.

Their quarry included three men who have been named as attorneys of Capone in the new alignment of gangs under the single banner of the scarface chieftain. They are George "Red" Barker and William "Three-Fingered Jack" White, described by the Chicago crime commission as controllers of labor unions seized by force, and Claude Maddox, reputed leader of the circus gang suspected of participation in the St. Valentine's Day massacre.

Dissatisfaction Over G. O. P. Failure in Farm Problem and Liquor Situation Sweeps Section.

BY L. A. FARRELL.

Staff Correspondent.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—The impossible is about to happen. The middle west, long the stronghold of the republican party, is about to pass into the hands of the democrats with the G. O. P. crumbling under an avalanche of opposition to its policies on farm relief, prohibition and the tariff.

One cannot travel through this section without noting the well-meaning signs that spell doom for the party so long in power throughout the area. Even the most ardent admit the end of the long and triumphant, if not autocratic, reign is at hand. The house probably will show the greatest change with the democrats assuming a majority as a result of their victories in the middle west, while the senate will be more than even in the hands of the LaFollette-Norris-McMaster group that, with the democrats, has held the balance of power.

The rising tide of democratic victory is not only apparent here but farther east—Illinois, Ohio and may be even Pennsylvania—liquor and tariff being the dominant issues beyond the grain and corn belt.

Democrats on Crest.

Observers in this section believe that the Missouri delegation in the lower house of congress, now republican, will, after the November elections, be almost wholly democratic, with the same holding true in Oklahoma and Nebraska. A democrat is expected to succeed Senator Pine in Oklahoma and it may be that a democrat, former Governor Jonathan M. Davis, will succeed Senator Arthur Capper in Kansas.

But it is in the house, where the democrats long have been in the majority, that they expect the greatest gains. The republicans now hold the majority by about 100 votes. To equalize the situation the democrats expect to win at least 50 seats, and the party leaders here say they are certain to take 15 to 18 in Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma, and two or three in Nebraska.

Invitations have been mailed to a large number of prominent citizens, and in addition to being host to the cabinet member and several other nationally known figures in government and aeronautical circles, the chamber has announced that world-renowned fliers will be among those to take part in the celebration.

With Postmaster General Brown will be W. Irving Glover, second assistant postmaster general, and Colonel Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, as representatives of the national government; while Frederick G. Cohen, president of the Aviation Corporation, holding company for the Southern Air Express, Inc., operators of the new Atlanta-to-Los Angeles mail and passenger line; Graham B. Grosvenor, vice chairman of the board of directors of Aviation Corporation; Hainer Hinchey, assistant to Cohen; Captain Thomas B. Doe, president of Eastern Air Transport, Inc.; H. A. Elliott, vice president, and Ralph Weston, business manager, of the same company, will occupy the honor table.

Aviators to Attend.

Among the notable figures in the more romantic phase of aeronautics expected to attend the banquet will be Ruth Elder, of trans-Atlantic flight; Eleanor Smith, of the National Broadcasting Company, famed woman pilot, and Ruth Nichols, equally noted among America's feminine fliers.

News was received in Atlanta Sunday night of the probability that Mayor Ragsdale, who is expected to represent Atlanta officially at the banquet, will fly with high officials of the Aviation Corporation and Eastern Air Transport, Inc., from New York to Washington today or Tuesday morning, whence he may continue the flight to Atlanta in the party headed by Postmaster General Brown and other government officials.

Mayor Ragsdale, who went to New York for the Ogilvie-Mannhattan football game, signified his inclination to accept such invitations from officials as the two large aviation concerns in a telegram to his secretary, Miss Evelyn Dewberry.

According to the plans of the principal guests, as learned over the weekend from New York and Washington, it is probable that four bi-motored Fokker cabin planes of the Aviation Corporation will hop off from New York this morning, with the corporation officials, heading for Washington, where they will stop overnight, taking on board the postmaster and his companions Tuesday morning.

Leaving the national capital early that forenoon, it is understood, the air party will head southwest, stopping briefly at Spartanburg, where they will be guests at a luncheon to be given by officials of Eastern Air Transport, which operates the New York-Atlanta air mail service.

Presentation of Flag.

Although this phase of the banquet program had not been completed Sunday, it was expected to be completed today.

$12,000 in Insurance Paid Payne Children

AMARILLO, Texas, Oct. 11.—(AP)—The scheming of A. D. Payne, Amarillo attorney, who caused the death of his wife by a dynamite blast, then killed himself with an explosive while in jail here, came to at least partial fulfillment today when his children were paid $12,000 by an insurance company.

Payne, in a written confession before his death, said he planned his wife's death and his own in order that their children might have the money from their insurance policies.

LEADERS APPROVE HOWARD DIAGNOSIS OF GEORGIA'S ILLS

Spontaneous Wave of Commendation Follows Atlanta Attorney's Address Before Civilians.

A spontaneous wave of approval and commendation following in the wake of his recent diagnosis of the political ills of Georgia has swept into the office of William Schley Howard, eminent Atlanta attorney, in the form of letters from prominent citizens all over Georgia, concurring in his opinions as related to the members of the Atlanta Civic Club last week.

Every one of the four major points detailed by Mr. Howard in his analysis of the rhetorical question, "What's Wrong With Georgia?" has evoked an unqualified agreement in the minds of experienced political observers—namely, the need for a constitutional convention, failure of the federal reserve to seek public service, revision of the present system of taxation, and the need for a more efficient assembly for the control of lobbyists.

So enthusiastic was the reception throughout the state of Mr. Howard's diagnosis of the situation that he has been besieged by leaders in many sections to accept urgent invitations to deliver addresses similar in scope to the Atlanta Civic Club talk delivered in Atlanta. Although it will be impossible to accede to all the importunities, Mr. Howard said during the talk, he will endeavor to make a number of requests for speeches under advisement, and wherever circumstances permit will endeavor to satisfy the demands of public leaders.

McWhorter Concerns.

Hamilton McWhorter, prominent attorney of Lexington and former member of the lower house in the general assembly, was one of the many experienced observers to concur in the attitude of Mr. Howard for remedial action looking toward betterment of the state's political status.

Mr. McWhorter, who has been elected to the state senate from his district in the September primary, declared that he has served in the legislature for nearly four years "and know what you say is true."

"I have been the co-author for the last two sessions, he wrote Mr. Howard, of a resolution for a constitutional convention. The late Ferner Barrett and myself introduced such an amendment last session. We could not get it passed. I do not believe we can make any progress without a constitutional convention."

Continuing, Mr. McWhorter declared:

"One of the worst things which ever happened to Georgia was the removal of the lower house from the general assembly, was one of the many experienced observers to concur in the attitude of Mr. Howard for remedial action looking toward betterment of the state's political status."

Meet on Cotton Ills Opens Today

National Leaders at New Orleans Seek Solution of Market Troubles of Staple.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—The minds of the country's foremost cotton marketing experts will be brought to bear tomorrow in formal meeting here upon the problems and perplexities now affecting the cotton trade.

Leaders of the trade field began arriving tonight to attend the meeting, called by D. E. McCuen, of Greenville, S. C., and R. C. Dickinson, of Memphis, Tenn., president and vice president of the American Cotton Shippers' Association, in the hope of evolving ways and means of restoring confidence in what the shippers referred to as "the continued decline and demoralization of the cotton market."

Leading cotton factors and trading officials of New Orleans greeted the first arrivals for the meeting, and immediately set about their entertainment.

Among those participating in the conference are Alexander H. Legge, chairman of the federal farm board; Carl Williams, member of the board for cotton; Secretary of Commerce Lamont; Eugene R. Meyer, head of the federal reserve bank; E. F. Crenshaw, vice president and general manager of the American Cotton Cooperative Association, and representatives of the New York and New Orleans exchanges.

Mr. McCuen, president of the Cotton Shippers' Association, has announced that the idea of the meeting was original with the association and was not the suggestion of the farm board.

As a pre-meeting utterance, Mr. Williams asserted that the worst was over for cotton as far as price was concerned. He said that the price had reached its definite low mark.

"Cotton is not only on an investment basis," he affirmed, "but is as low as it is ever going to get."

SHOWGIRL BEAUTY IS HELD BY POLICE IN PROBE OF CASE

Girl Admits Occupying Adjoining Room to That in Which Attempted Assassination Occurred.

AFFAIR IS SIMILAR TO ROTHSTEIN CASE

Gang Chieftain Says Three Unknown Men Opened Fire When He Opened Room Door.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(UN)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, picturesque young kingpin of New York gangland, was shot four times and critically wounded today in his room at a Manhattan hotel.

After a search of several hours police seized 22-year-old Marian Roberts, a Ziegfeld show girl, for questioning as to her reported presence in the room adjoining that of Diamond.

Earlier, police had said they thought a woman might have accompanied Diamond to the hotel and that his enemies—who are legion—might have learned through her of his presence.

Miss Roberts said tonight, police announced, that she had been in the next room to Diamond and that some time last night she had made a long distance telephone call to New Jersey. She refused to divulge the nature of the call.

One man questioned by police said that an automobile in which two men fled from the hotel after the shooting carried a New Jersey license plate.

The attempted assassination occurred at about 11 o'clock this morning, Diamond, in a dangerous condition at Polyclinic hospital, told District Attorney Thomas C. Crain that three men burst into his room at the Monticello hotel, at 35 West 84th street, and started pumping bullets at him. He told the district attorney he did not know the men.

Girl Was Hiding.

Detectives found Miss Roberts tonight in the apartment of Agnes McLaughlin, Broadway show girl who some months ago sued Rudy Vallee for breach of promise.

When the officers arrived at the apartment they said they found Miss Roberts hiding under a pile of clothing in a closet.

The girl, a strikingly beautiful brunette, who has appeared in several big musical comedies, was taken to the police station for questioning.

In addition to admitting having placed the telephone call, she said that when the shooting occurred in Diamond's room she was in her own room taking a bath. She left the hotel a short time later, she told the detectives, because she had to attend a rehearsal of Ziegfeld's new production, "Smiles." Miss Roberts' real name is Strassnick, police said, and she comes from New York.

While she was being quizzed by Police Commissioner Edward P. Mulrooney and District Attorney Crain, Miss Diamond arrived in New York from her home at Acra in the Catskills late last night and took a room at the Monticello.

He went to bed at 2 a. m., he said. At about 11 o'clock this morning, he told the district attorney, someone called.

Chance to Recover.

With three wounds in the chest and one in the head, Diamond was placed on the operating table at the attempt this afternoon. He has a chance for recovery, physicians said.

tapped at his door. He went to the door, opened it and confronted the three men, who immediately opened fire on him.

Diamond said he staggered into the corridor, got as far as the elevator and collapsed.

The shooting, striking in its similarity to the murder of Arnold Rothstein, occurred in room 329.

Room 329, occupied by Jacob Ginsburg, manager of the hotel, is just two doors away. Diamond, in some manner, got into Ginsburg's suite after he was shot. He told the district attorney he did not know how he got there.

Ginsburg disappeared a short time after the shooting and was being sought by police tonight.

Saw Men Running.

District Attorney Crain questioned two witnesses who saw the two men either inside or outside the hotel. Mrs. Elizabeth Bebel, housekeeper at the hotel, said she was on the second floor when she heard the shots. A moment later she saw two men running down the stairs. She said she didn't see their faces. They went through the small lobby on the ground floor and that was the last she saw of them.

Outside, in the street, a few doors away, Ernest Mullen, an electrician, was working on his car. He told Crain he saw two men in a black Chrysler drive up and park across the street from the hotel. They left their motor running, left a door standing open and walked into the hotel, Mullen said.

Mullen said he heard the shots but he thought they were an automobile backfiring. He saw the two men come running out of the hotel, watched them jump into their car and drive away. He said they headed for Central park and he thought their car bore a New Jersey license plate.

Shortly after 11 a. m., Dr. Howard E. Babcock, a private physician living at the McAlpin hotel, received a telephone call asking that he go to the Monticello hotel to treat a "sick man." Dr. Babcock did not know who made the call, he said.

He drove to the Monticello and was directed to Ginsburg's room, where, he said, Diamond was stretched out on the bed.

A private ambulance, from the McDougall Ambulance Service, had already been summoned and after Dr. Babcock had made a hasty examination of the wounded man, he was taken to the hospital.

The Polyclinic is the hospital where

Arnold Rothstein died after he was shot in November, 1928, in a room at the Park Central hotel.

Diamond was placed on the operating table at the hospital at 3 o'clock this afternoon and at that time was said to have made his first and only statement to police. He asked that his wife be notified of the shooting at the Diamond home at Acra, N. Y. Then he said succinctly that three men had shot him. Further questioning, it was reported, brought no results.

One bullet struck the gang leader in the middle of the forehead but glanced upward. Of the three wounds in the chest, one is an inch or two above the heart. Physicians said it might cause his death.

Eight shots are believed to have been fired in the hotel room. Two bullet holes were found in the ceiling, one in the floor, one in the window.

Believed Hiding.

The Monticello is a 10-story building, of very modest appointments. Room 329 is plainly furnished, with a double bed, a dresser, two chairs and a mirror. Police are inclined to think that Diamond, who usually frequents the larger, more ornate hotels when in the city, was hiding in this room.

This theory is borne out by the circumstances of Diamond's recently publicized trip to Europe, in which the government of England, Belgium and Germany forbade his entrance.

The New York racketeer fled to Europe, it was said, because of an impending war in New York over liquor racketeering privileges. It was said that "Scarface" Al Capone, of Chicago, was preparing to invade the New York field.

Diamond went to Europe, the story goes, to wait until the trouble blew over. His trip was to no avail, however, and he was forced to return to the United States. He landed less than a month ago at Philadelphia and was immediately arrested. He was discharged, however, after that time—late last month—until today, apparently had been "lying low."

Shortly after he left Philadelphia under rumors and hints of going to Atlantic City to arrange some sort of gangland peace pact. Police are certain that, since his return to this country, Diamond has had reason to be apprehensive.

The shooting of Diamond shocked police into energetic action. It will be recalled that the Rothstein shooting was followed by many charges of inefficiency and blundering, and a subsequent shakeup in the department.

A fingerprint squad went over the entire room and its contents this afternoon in a search for clues. Eight employees of the hotel were taken to the West 68th street police station, where the investigation centered, and were being questioned still tonight. A large crowd gathered in front of the station, attracted by the goings and comings of detectives, police officials and witnesses.

Two Die in Accident.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—David Drage, 26, of Kansas City, Mo., and Mrs. Elizabeth Converse, 23, of Chevy Chase, Md., were killed early today when their automobile left the road on a curve near here and struck a tree.

Atlantan Promises Beach Real Georgia Local Color

HASTINGS INVITES AUTHOR TO VISIT MOUNTAINS

BY WILLIAM O. KEY, JR.

That offer Rex Beach made to come to Georgia and write a novel with a native background if someone would dig up a story for him has registered a bull's-eye.

Already the Atlanta Biltmore hotel, through its publicity director, William G. Hastings, has telegraphed the popular author inviting him to Atlanta and promising any number of vehicles for his mighty pen.

"We invite you to be our guest in your quest for stories," Mr. Hastings wired the author Sunday night. "We will take you to Dahlonega, scene of the first gold mines in America, where $800,000,000 was mined prior to the Civil War. We will show you a $85 nugget picked up there recently. Other lures are set forth, including the rich Indian legend that abounds in northwest Georgia hills; the promise of intimate contact with backwoods mountaineers, into whose class few outsiders ever are admitted; a contact with a quaint language which has been obsolete since Elizabethan times. And many other colorful opportunities.

Like one of Rex Beach's own far-reaching characters, Mr. Hastings concluded his message with, "What about it?" which had the effect of calling the market occurred on December 3, 1926, with March cotton at 11.80.

"At that meeting there were present almost identically the same interests that have been invited to this meeting. A set of principles was adopted to restore confidence and the shippers' association put the plans into execution. The result was that the market rose from 11.80 to 25.12 cents on September 8, 1927."

During that period President Coolidge appointed a cotton commission composed of three cabinet members, Hoover, Mellon and Jardine, and Eugene Meyer, of the federal reserve bank, to assist in settling the cotton problem.

"The meeting tomorrow," said Mr. McCuen, "will be infinitely larger in attendance than that of 1926. The federal reserve bank, the farm board, the federal reserve banks of Atlanta, Dallas, St. Louis and New Orleans, the New York and New Orleans Cotton Exchanges, the Chicago board of trade and the textile interests will be represented.

Before the executive meeting of the board today plans were ironed out for presentation of the question tomorrow, and outsiders appeared with outlines of new plans for solution.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER RAID NETS WET 'NAVY'

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—A Minuteman bootlegger's navy was captured by Chicago Dry Agent Dillon and eight of his men in a raid at St. Genevieve, Mo., 70 miles south of here on the Mississippi river Saturday.

A 70-foot river cruiser, a 70-foot barge and a small motor boat valued altogether at $15,000, 700 gallons of alcohol, and 1,500 sacks of corn sugar were seized and a crew of ten men arrested.

The boat and barge were used, Dillon believes, to transport alcohol across the river from a mammoth still on the Illinois shore, and send it up to St. Louis.

In fairness to the public, A&P announces a cut in the price of its Pullman wrapped loaf of bread conforming to the reduced price of wheat. This reduction is in accordance with A&P's policy—giving to the consumer the benefit of lower prices of raw material.

The farmer shares the advantage—larger consumption of his product following lower prices at the store counter.

DANGEROUS CONVICTS ESCAPE FLORIDA GANG

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Three white convicts, described by deputy sheriffs as dangerous, escaped early today from a county road camp. They eluded dogs and a posse of deputies through the day and were still at liberty tonight.

The men who escaped were James Starke, James Warren, and Jack Silva. The trio escaped in night gowns from sleeping quarters at the camp, which lies several miles west of Coral Gables, as a night guard left the sleeping camp cages to open the compound for the morning.

A posse continued to search through the northwest part of the county today and tonight. Deputies who participated in the search today said they did not believe the escape was planned.

Officials said they did not believe the men were armed, and in their belief, that the escape had not been carefully planned, said they did not think that arms, clothing or food had been cached.

AVIATION BANQUET PLANS TAKE SHAPE

day night for definite announcement, it was expected that the most auspicious moment of the banquet Tuesday would be the official presentation by Postmaster General Brown to Postmaster Edwin K. Large of the new adopted official air mail flag of the United States government. The presented standard will be hoisted over the postoffice building at Chandler field Wednesday morning, where it will flutter for the first time as the first plane takes the air for the initial flight to the Pacific. This is expected to take place at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning.

After the initial Pacific-bound mail plane hops off, the official visiting party will hop off in their Fokker cabin planes to form an escort for it to Fort Worth, Texas, where the entire party, augmented by Will Rogers and Erle Halliburton, the latter chairman of Southern Air Fast Express, Inc., will attend a banquet as guests of honor at the Colonial Arms Hotel, publisher of the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, on Wednesday night.

All along the southern sweep of the new transcontinental route plans are being made on have been completed for elaborate entertainment of the official escort of the first westward flight, the Atlanta-Los Angeles air mail. At Jackson, Miss., Governor Bilbo will head an official delegation of reception, and at Shreveport Governor Huey Long will welcome the party.

Large Lauds Aviation.

Postmaster E. K. Large Sunday night declared that aviation is a new and mighty magician that is revolutionizing the civilization that we know today and has reduced the size of the present-day world to a size of the Roman Empire at its height.

This comment came in his discussion of the opening of the new southern transcontinental air mail route by the southern division of American Airways, Inc., operating company of the aviation corporation.

It is generally considered in Atlanta that the inauguration of the new southern transcontinental air mail and passenger route between this city and Los Angeles, through Phoenix, Miss. Shreveport, La.; Dallas, Fort Worth, and El Paso, Texas; Phoenix, Ariz., is a joining of hands on the part of the postoffice department and officials of American Airways to answer the challenge of Dixie, the southwest, west and the nether Americas for speedy transmission of mails and transportation of passengers to meet the demands levied by the inter-trade relations of these territories.

Elaboring on his statement in behalf of aviation Postmaster Large said:

"All modern life has been evolved upon a basis of time and during the last half century upon the curtailment of the time element. The airplane has given us increased ability and facility to contact our neighbors in one-time distant points. This has affected our business, has affected us as individuals and has even affected our psychology. The development of aviation and the radio has reduced the size of the world today to that of the Roman empire at its height.

"The order of the postoffice department instituting this new southern transcontinental air mail service reflects the firm belief in history's axiom that 'civilization is not more advanced than the transportation systems which serve it.' The era of big business has descended upon this country and the rapidly increasing foreign trade of the United States demands this 'stepping out' of the modes of transportation serving domestic and foreign trade.

"American Airways and its subsidiary organizations, including Southern Air Transport and Interstate Airlines, with which this section is familiar, are among those who deserve praise of our people for successfully and faithfully weathering the trying pioneering period of commercial aviation. It is a just reward that they should be chosen for this new and important role in our drama of transportation.

"I have before me a printed interview of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd with Colonel Halsey Dunwoody, executive vice president of Universal Division American Airways, in which Admiral Byrd declares 'Yankee faith and grim determination have given the United States the world's great air line system and this same faith and determination of these pioneer American airline operators will hold these lines to the position won. Truly, these men of the American airlines have done a noble job because after all aviation, commercial aviation, in the United States is less than five years old.

"Regarding the benefits that will accrue to the south, to the southwest and to the west from the operation of this new line which is to be dedicated Wednesday, it does not require a brilliant mind to discern what it means to have Dallas only seven hours from Atlanta instead of two days; Los Angeles only 18 hours across the flying time from Atlanta instead of three days and two nights away. The airplane has made the business world more compact, which makes for efficiency, money saving and general progress."

DALLAS AND TUCSON PLAN RECEPTIONS

DALLAS, Texas, Oct. 12.—(Special)—A mail history will be written when the first plane out of Los Angeles takes off Wednesday for Atlanta, eastern terminus of the new southern transcontinental air route, and again at Tucson, Ariz., when the sky liner descends for mail.

Aboard the tri-motored Fokker piloted by J. W. Martin, Jr., will be Pearl Ovington, who received the first sack of air mail ever to be flown from former Postmaster-General Frank Hitchcock, during the administration of Woodrow Wilson, an honorary co-pilot on the run to El Paso. At Tucson, his home, former Postmaster-General Hitchcock will deliver to Ovington and Martin the first sack of mail from that point, and thus, under circumstances rarely different from that earlier day, when delivery of mail by air was more or less an experiment by the postoffice department and hinted but little of the vast national network it was to become, history will be repeated.

The principal address at Tucson commemorating the event will be delivered by Mr. Hitchcock, together with speeches by Mayor W. A. Julian and Postmaster Henry Zips.

In addition to Ovington, Lieutenant Colonel Thurman H. Bane, vice president of the American Airways, Inc., and several newspapermen will be aboard ship.

Thursday the intermediary points of Big Spring, El Paso, Phoenix, Tucson and Los Angeles will greet the first passenger from the east, headed by President F. G. Coburn, of the Aviation Corporation. Other passengers from the east will be Elmer Smith, famous aviator; Ruth Nichols, second woman to receive regular pilot's license; A. P. Barrett, vice president, Aviation Corporation; Graham B. Grosvenor, vice chairman of the board, and Erle P. Halliburton, chairman of the board, S. A. F. E. Inc. Two plane will be piloted by Homer Rader, veteran S. A. F. E. pilot, and Miss Smith will speak over radio stations at points between Atlanta and Los Angeles, describing the progress of the flight over each division.

Postmaster-General Brown, Clarence D. Young, of the department of commerce in charge of aeronautics, and Second Assistant Postmaster-General W. Irving Glover will turn back from Fort Worth after the banquet Wednesday night.

Insull Utilities Plan To Spend 200 Million in Improvements

President of Huge Company Declares Present Business Depression Is Only Temporary.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—An estimate that the Insull utilities would spend between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000 for permanent improvements in 1937 was made tonight by Samuel Insull, the utilities magnate, in a statement in which he viewed the "present business depression as only temporary."

The improvements, he said, would be distributed over 20 or 30 states. Of the total, he added, $124,000,000 would be expended in and around Chicago, much of it incidental to the transportation building program in Chicago.

Total expenditures of Insull companies for plant extensions in 1930 would be between $100,000,000 and $200,000,000, Mr. Insull announced. He had estimated an outlay of $198,000,000 at the White House conference of last November.

"Considering the time it takes to complete additions and extensions," Insull said, "and the time which must elapse before the money required therefor can be effectively reflected in earnings, we naturally must look quite some distance ahead. In looking ahead, we view the present business depression as only temporary. We feel that this depression will have relatively little effect upon the growth of our business over a period of years."

He said Insull companies had experienced "no trouble" in selling stocks or bonds for investment during the depression period.

"When the panic of last November occurred," Insull stated, "I wondered whether it would be followed by a decided depression in our business. I felt I had had no experience of this kind, but I was able to forecast the effect that a panic in the stock market and a general depression in business would have upon the revenue of public utilities. We therefore made a survey recently of the various branches of the utilities industries with these results: 'Month to month experience of this year, 1936, has brought me to the conclusion that although the use of manufactured gas has more or less reached the saturation point, except in house heating and the arts, the decrease in revenue from the sale of gas in times of depression is relatively slight.'

"The situation in regard to the use of electricity is even more favorable. We still get a steady increase of use for household purposes, and this increase has been about enough to compensate for decreased use in the arts, brought about by the depression."

"Such favorable conclusions, however, cannot be reached in regard to transportation. The decrease in revenue of the transportation lines under our management has been, for the first eight months of 1936, at an average of about 7 or 8 per cent, whereas all the properties of the Insull group, taken together—gas, electricity and transportation—show an average increase of a little over 7 per cent."

On the whole, the Insull group of properties will show reasonably good balance sheets for 1936.

Mr. Insull pointed out that gas and electric business had increased most rapidly in country and suburban regions and that "real troubles" are confined largely to suburban and interurban transportation lines which are affected not only by business depression but by automobile competition.

"Accident" Verdict In Death of Jones

A verdict of "accidental death" was returned by a coroner's jury Sunday morning in the death of Fred Jones, 45-year-old news carrier, who fell from the Springfield viaduct late Friday afternoon. The inquest was held at the funeral parlors of Harry G. Poole, where the body rests, awaiting perfection of funeral arrangements.

Jones is survived by two aunts, Misses Sallie and Minnie Clark, of Misses Sallie and Minnie Clark, of Dawson, and two uncles, John Clark, of Dawson, and Frank Clark, of Rockmart.

The improvements, he said, would be distributed over 20 or 30 states. Of the total, he added, $124,000,000 would be expended in and around Chicago, much of it incidental to the transportation building program in Chicago.

BOTH FACTIONS CLAIM VICTORIES IN BRAZIL

Reports, However, Are Singularly Free of Data About Casualties.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS. Insurgent headquarters in Porto Alegre, Rio Grande do Sul, claimed a general advance of revolutionary troops along the border of Sao Paulo and Parana, with victories at Jaraguá, São José da Platina, Ponta Ribeira, Ourinhos and Singues.

A government statement listed the group, which asserted that it was a government statement, issued at Rio de Janeiro, also said that rebels attacking Caravelas, small southern Bahia port, had been repulsed and many of their number taken prisoner.

The insurgents claimed to have occupied and to be in control of the city. Insurgent claims of victory in the state of Alagoas also were disputed by the government, which asserted that the spirit of the revolutionists was beginning to wane, and that there was no question of Rio's being able eventually to control the situation.

Yaguas, president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, and defeated candidate for the national presidency, assumed control of the state's insurgent movement and left Porto Alegre for the Sao Paulo front.

STIMSON, AID TO FORM DISARMAMENT PLANS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(UN)—Secretary of State Stimson and the two delegates appointed by President Hoover to represent the United States at Geneva, began today to formulate a series of conferences to formulate American policy.

Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, and Hugh R. Wilson, American minister to Switzerland, will be this country's principal delegates at Geneva. They are veterans of international disarmament conferences, having participated in both the Geneva discussions of 1927 and the London conference of 1930.

In the preliminary discussions at the state department, it is expected that particular attention will be given to the budget plan of disarmament, of which France is one of the principal exponents. Under this plan each nation, instead of agreeing to a quota of troops and war materials, would commit itself to spend only so much on national defense each year.

France supports this budget plan because her standing army of 600,000 men is conscripted for service and soldiers are paid only a few cents per day, officials here explained. On the other hand, the United States, Great Britain and Germany, who have been rather cool toward the financial thesis, rely on volunteer troops who are compensated more liberally. This country, for instance, pays its lowest ranking soldier around one dollar per day.

Efforts to pave the way for a general disarmament conference, such as was envisaged by the Versailles treaty, were begun in 1924. The preparatory commission then began to gather in to present to a conference to be called when political conditions seemed to warrant success.

Meetings have been held intermittently since 1926, but political difficulties have arisen constantly to impede the calling of a conference. In addition, conferences have been most impossible to obtain unanimity on methods of disarmament.

Whether reserves should be counted in estimating military strength has been one perennial and troublesome question. The United States and Great Britain, having few reserves, have argued that they should be included, although at the last conference they receded somewhat from their previous positions. France, having 5,000,000 reserves, has contended they should not be counted.

Nations also have debated long and violently over whether industrial and economic resources should be counted in judging a nation's military strength. As might have been expected, those countries with vast resources took the negative, those with slight natural endowments, the affirmative.

As the London naval conference has settled, temporarily at least, some of the acute naval problems confronting the United States in former years, it is expected more attention will be paid by this country to armies and air forces than formerly.

That the American army should be decreased is considered beyond the realm of probabilities. Our standing army numbers approximately 125,000 men as compared with 100,000 in France, 382,000 for the British Empire, and 500,000 for Italy.

The preparatory commission will meet at Geneva November 6.

4 NEGROES SOUGHT FOR KILLING MAN

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 12.—(AP)—A widespread search was on here today for four negroes, one a woman, who shot and killed Harry Panchot, 45, and critically wounded Paul Ritter, 38, after robbing them at Little Rock boat landing, about two miles north of here, early today. After shooting the men the negroes robbed them, drew them into the Mississippi river and threw rocks at Ritter when he did not sink.

Authorities anticipated mob violence if the negroes were found. Crowds gathered outside the jail after 20 negroes were rounded up, but at noon only small groups remained. Sheriff Louis Zeigler swore in ten deputies.

Panchot, a service car driver, was engaged by the negroes to take them to Little Rock boat landing early today and Ritter, a stationary fireman, went along for the ride. On reaching the landing the negroes paid Panchot, Ritter said, and then started shooting. They took $10 and a watch from Ritter and a small amount of money from Panchot's pockets. Panchot was killed by a bullet through the heart and Ritter was shot through the abdomen by a bullet which entered his spine, paralyzing his legs. When he attempted to swim the negroes hit him on the head with rocks.

When Mrs. Peel's carriage drove up in front of John Keely's, and later Mrs. Peel's limousine, the news of the presence of this gracious lady spread quickly through the store.

Miss Hattie Murphy (who, by the way, rates as one of the country's best lace women) would hurriedly reach for her most treasured file and rose point, for she knew Mrs. Peel would first want to see the latest arrivals in real lace. And so on through the store—more and more file and lace, and the most beautiful lines to be found in the South would be judged and bought with a knowing eye.

And Mrs. Peel is just one of the hundreds of Atlantans whose association with this old store will long be treasured.

For 63 years, since its founding in 1863 by Captain John Keely, this institution has served Atlanta and the South with fashions and accessories and many are the faces which appear on its charge books—for THREE GENERATIONS!

YOUNG CANNON LAYS WOES TO PARENTHOOD

Attacked Because He Is Son of Bishop Cannon, He Asserts.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Major Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, said in statements tonight that charges filed against him in Los Angeles and San Bernardino counties, California, involving the issuance of bad checks would be "answered satisfactorily at the proper time and place."

He said during the past two years he had "been the target of frequent attacks not because I am R. M. Cannon but because I am one of the sons of Bishop James Cannon, Jr." He added it was "quite significant" that his Los Angeles office was burned and important valuable papers destroyed four days before he left that city.

SEVENTEEN GUILTY OF DRY VIOLATION

WICHITA, Kans., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Seventeen of 36 defendants, on trial in federal court for participation in a huge southern Kansas liquor ring, were convicted by a jury late Saturday night, which also acquitted 13 defendants and failed to reach a verdict in the case of one defendant.

Everett G. Miner, suspended county attorney of Dodge City, and two Wichita deputy sheriffs were among defendants upon whose indictments the jury failed to act. Miner testified during the eight-day trial that he accepted $8,000 from Marcus Gorges, head of the ring, but declared he did so only to obtain evidence.

Gorges, who made his headquarters in Wichita, was convicted. Judge head of the ring, but declared he did so only to obtain evidence.

Atlanta Burglars Get "Slim Pickings"

Negro burglars operating on the south side Sunday morning got little for their trouble, police reported. A thief who had stolen her husband's trousers containing $1 in cash, keys, etc., was routed by Mrs. V. F. Watson, of 937 South Boulevard shortly before daybreak, a report said. At 940 Hill street, H. T. Coleman frustrated an attempt to rob his residence a short while later.

Artificial Suns To Make Animals In Zoo Happy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Desert and jungle animals at the new zoo at Griffith Park, artificial sunbaths daily to test the therapeutic potency of infra-red and ultra-violet rays.

Artificial sunlight as strong as the real beams of the sun in their native habitat is being manufactured for them by electrical experts.

Already a monitor, a large lizard from the Australian desert, has perked up perceptibly after daily baskings in his healthily illumined indoor cubicle in the lion house.

But this is merely a forerunner of more comprehensive experiments to start about January 1 with completion of the remarkable and ultra-modern reptile exhibition building now nearing completion in the National Zoological park.

But the home-infant variety of violet ray was not spared for Susan, a little outcast lion cub Dr. Mann and his wife are bringing up by the baby book. Susan was born in July. Her mother would take no interest whatever in the family of three, and two of them died. Susan, however, fell into the expert hands of Mrs. Mann, who fed her warmed milk each three hours, day and night, by the letter of the artificial feeding formula.

The next chapter of the baby book was on sunbaths, which Susan has been taking, on leash, all summer. And the coming winter will see her basking in ultra-violet rays.

Mrs. Mann makes further notations on Susan's age-height-weight relationship card, and continues the chapter on her incoming teeth.

A wide variety of animals will be included in the tropical sunshine tests, but they will stress the reptilian and batrachian class because of the greater simplicity of reaching accurate results and the greater convenience of the new snake house.

And with strong indoor sunshine to add reality, it should be hard for the Galapagos desert fauna to realize they are in Washington, for every cage is conservatory as well as reptilian, duplicating living plants and actual temperature the home habitat.

RAMSEY McDONALD IS 64 YEARS OLD

LONDON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Bowed by heavy official burdens and grieved by the loss of one of his closest personal friends, Prime Minister MacDonald today observed his 64th birthday at Chequers, country home of British prime ministers.

In a message replying to congratulations from the Daily Herald, government organ, the prime minister said: "The body grows older but the mind remains young. One's only regret is that as life grows more interesting, it also grows shorter."

His children and the chief Australian and Irish delegates to the imperial conference spent the day with him. The body of one who had been spent previous holidays with him, Lord Thomson, was buried at Cardington yesterday with the other victims of the R-101 disaster.

Defeated Candidate Joins Quaker State G. O. P. Revolt

Phillips Turns Support From Pinchot to John Hemphill, Liberal Democratic Leader.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(UN)—Former Congressman Thomas W. Phillips, Jr., who was defeated by Gifford Pinchot last May for his party's nomination for the Pennsylvania governorship, today joined the group of republicans who have bolted the Pinchot ticket, and announced his support of John Hemphill, the liberal democratic candidate.

Following on the heels of W. W. Atterbury's repudiation of Pinchot, Phillips declared that "prohibition is the bane of good government—a cross upon which all rights are being crucified," and said that no person reading the Snyder-Armstrong liquor law sponsored by Pinchot could conscientiously vote for the republican candidate.

Phillips, who has been a lifelong republican, made the following statement:

"The liberal party has been brought

Marine Corps Officer Suicide in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Oct. 12.—(UN)—First Lieutenant Harvey Byars Alban, of the United States marine corps, committed suicide at Corinto Saturday afternoon, it was learned in Managua today. His home was in Missouri.

into being because liberty, justice and humanity having been ruthlessly trampled under the foot of officialdom, have once more become the paramount political issue.

"Mr. John M. Hemphill, the liberal candidate for governor, is the only candidate on the liberal ticket. He is a man of ability, character, courage, and in my opinion his election will promote the cause in which I am deeply interested."

"Opposed to Mr. Hemphill is ex-Governor Pinchot. Mr. Pinchot as governor was responsible for the Snyder-Armstrong act carrying penalties and provisions which hark back to the dark ages. No one of intelligence can read the Snyder-Armstrong act and then conscientiously vote for Mr. Pinchot."

Phillips declared further that if Pinchot is elected "it requires little imagination to picture our party forced by Mr. Pinchot to straddle the issue in 1932 and see him, flushed with a dry victory in a wet state, enter the presidential possibilities as an independent candidate supported by western insurgents."

Pinchot headquarters here announced Sunday the formation of a World War veterans committee to promote the candidacy of the former governor. The committee has representation in 50 of the 48 Philadelphia wards, it was announced.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE LECTURE SUNDAY

James G. Rowell, C. S., Makes Address at Keith's Georgia Theater.

Before a large and interested audience, James G. Rowell, C. S., of Kansas City, Mo., member of the board of lectureship of the Mother church, the First Church of Christ Scientist, Boston, Mass., delivered a lecture at Keith's Georgia theater Sunday under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist, Atlanta. The lecture was introduced by Floyd Jennings.

Dr. Russell said, in part: "In an arid country, nothing is so much appreciated as a spring of clear water. An arid country is a legend tell of such a spring, which, if it could be found, would transform the sandy desert into a garden and make it green and fruitful, capable of supporting in plenty untold numbers of people. The legend tells of an angel's stopping to quench his thirst at one of these rare desert springs. Finding the water sweet and refreshing, he blessed it. For long afterward from every spot where a drop of that spring water fell, a new spring gushed forth, and blessed the weary traveler. And then that wonderful spring was lost. Though many searched, no one seemed able to find it."

"Jesus of Nazareth, sitting by the well at Sychar, said to the woman of Samaria, 'If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water'; and then he added, 'But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.'"

"Mary Baker Eddy, the discoverer and founder of Christian Science, speaks in the preface of her little book, 'No and Yes' (p. 5) of 'those who are thirsting for the life-giving waters of a true divinity,' and invites them to 'Come and drink'; and if you are babes in Christ, leave the present and take the undisturbed waters of the World, until you grow to apprehend the pure spirituality of Truth. Like the water from the legendary well, these life-giving waters of a true divinity will cause another living spring to leap forth in every receptive heart, until at last the desert of human experience, parched by fear and sin and ignorance of God, shall be transformed and shall blossom as the rose."

Divine Mind Available to All.

"Even the little children may understand in some degree and find this truth that God is the only real Mind. A little eight-year-old Christian Scientist had an examination in arithmetic which lasted for one period each of two days. Talking to her mother about it later, she said, 'The first day the problems looked so hard when teacher put them on the board that I thought I couldn't do them. But I tried and tried, and finally I thought of something. I said to myself, 'Well, this is fine, trying to solve problems without God.' And then I thought, 'God is Mind, and He gives me intelligence to do what I have to do.' And I solved every problem. Mother and teacher gave me one hundred. The next day I had finished all the problems and then I thought, 'I just wish God could tell me whether these problems are right.' Something led me to look over the seventh, and I found a mistake in it and corrected it, and that's how I got two one hundreds in arithmetic."

"The same fact of being which enabled this little girl to solve her problems in arithmetic is available to all of us. This truth that God is the only Mind, is intimate enough to enter into our smallest personal problems and big enough to solve the clashing questions of the nations."

Evil or Mortal Mind.

"In human experience, we are compelled to take cognizance of another so-called mind, a limited, evil, human mind. Mrs. Eddy arrived at the conclusion that the human so-called mind with all its beliefs in materiality—ease and pleasure in matter, chance and change, sorrow and suffering, disease and death—is not really mind at all, but only a false, deceived, and deceiving sense of mind. This mortal mind, which seems to ape the activity and dominion of God, she named mortal mind."

"Unlike divine mind, mortal mind is ignorant of itself and of its own creations. Misunderstanding the origin of matter, mortal mind fastens upon matter its own false belief in substance as an object for worship. It endows matter, in belief, with the power and ability of Deity, to create, to sustain, to enjoy, and even to destroy. Matter is believed to be able to enforce laws of its own creating, through intelligence, force, and energy supposedly existent in itself."

Salvation Through Christ.

"Now Christian Science teaches the scientific way of changing or correcting mortal mind with immortal truth—of spiritualizing and purifying thought. This Christianly scientific process of instructing or educating mortal mind with truth is the way of salvation through Christ."

Christian Science is not educating mortal mind to be something, but to recognize its own falsity and to correct its misconceptions. Finally, all erroneous concepts will disappear, having given place to the infinite spiritual expression of divine mind."

The Master Metaphysician.

"Christ Jesus was the 'master Metaphysician' (The First Church of Christ, Scientist, and Miscellaneous, p. 222). His ministry was not only a system of Christian ethics, but one of Christian metaphysics as well. By metaphysics is meant the full and exact knowledge of real being, which is not material, but spiritual. Jesus taught his followers by precept and example to look away from the physical, the material, for both cause and effect. Jesus' understanding of the supremacy of mind over matter, of good over evil, of truth over error, of the actual over what seemed to be, was proof of his Christliness, and the foundation on which he wrought his wondrous works."

"From his teachings and his works, can anyone doubt that Jesus the Christ was the master Metaphysician? Is it not plain that Jesus 'resolved things into thoughts' (Science and Health, p. 269), and then, through his understanding of the supremacy of spirit over matter, of good over evil, of the divine over the human, changed the belief in lack to an improved belief in abundance; a belief in fear to one of confidence in God; good; a belief in disease to one of health; a belief in sin to one of purity."

"Matter was a very different thing to Jesus from what it was to the worldly minds about him. Jesus saw in matter a mental phenomenon which could be changed in the way that any false theory or false belief can be changed or destroyed. Every change that Jesus made in what seemed material conditions was made in strict obedience to the laws of divine metaphysics."

"There is nothing supernatural in the ability to discern the 'spiritual fact of whatever the material senses behold' (Science and Health, p. 585). As Mrs. Eddy expresses it, 'This spiritual ability was the outstanding characteristic of the prophets, the seers, of Christ Jesus himself, and of his disciples. It is the essentially dis-

Indian Summer Weather Seen For This Week

Cloudless weather and moderate temperatures will prevail in Atlanta and vicinity today, it was indicated by the local weather forecast Sunday. Temperatures will be about the same as those experienced during the last few days, which, while slightly above normal for this time of year, were of sufficient range to remind Atlantans that real autumn days are here.

Indications as contained in the weekly weather outlook from Washington over the week-end were that this section will enjoy Indian summer weather during the remainder of the week, with no rain in sight and normal temperatures predicted.

Sunday's temperature range was from 58 to 76 degrees.

SCIENTISTS PROTEST SOVIET EXECUTIONS

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Eighty-three prominent scientists, writers and artists today issued a public protest against the reported execution of learned men in Russia.

The manifesto said evidence seems to pile up indicating that all scientific activity claiming even a modicum of freedom of thought is becoming impossible under the soviet regime.

Among the signers were Wilhelm Furtwängler, Max Lieberman, of the University of Berlin; Heinrich Heine, author; Karl Muck, musical director; Dr. Hermann Oncken, Dr. Max Planck, mathematician, and Jacob Wassermann, writer.

linguishing possession of the Christian Scientist. Every case of healing brought out by Christian Science is the direct result of spiritual discrimination between the testimony of the false senses and the evidence of the spiritual senses—that is, between illusion and the eternal spiritual facts of being. It is the silencing of a lie by the transcendent power of truth.

"For us to believe that there is both a real, spiritual man made in God's likeness and a mortal, material person which may be the day of salvation, is a serious mistake. For us to believe that we have an eternal, real selfhood in the likeness of God, that we are immortal, is the day of our true selfhood, but must wait until we have demonstrated spirituality in order to do so, is again all that error, or mortal mind, asks. If error has our present allegiance, what more does it need or desire?"

"We can never demonstrate spirituality until we serve spirit and identify ourselves with spirit's creation. Jesus sent his disciples forth with instructions to preach that the kingdom of heaven is at hand, and Paul reminds us that the day of salvation. He who has spiritual understanding is identifying himself with his spiritual selfhood now."

Man's Duty to Man.

"In working out our own salvation, it is essential to understand our neighbor with his true selfhood, the image and likeness of God. This is the fulfilling of the law. 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.' In this law, friends, we are responsible for all that we do and think. This means that we are responsible for all that we think or do for our neighbor. We think that our neighbor does and thinks. Note well. We are not, of course responsible for what our neighbor does and thinks, but we are absolutely accountable for what we think our neighbor does and thinks. This wise loving of our neighbor will not blind us to the evil beliefs which he may seem to be entertaining, but will help us and him to realize no reality in them."

"The ability to separate, in our thinking, the error from the individual is one of the outstanding blessings that Mrs. Eddy's discovery has brought to mankind."

"One of the urgent necessities in Christian Science is to learn the lesson of unselfed love. 'Love thy neighbor as thyself' is a practical, scientific rule of spiritual worship. Our own good, as well as that of our neighbor, depends upon our putting this rule into practice."

Discoverer and Founder.

"Mary Baker Eddy, a good New England woman, discovered this 'lost spring' of 'living water' of which Jesus spoke to the woman of Samaria. Thereafter, Mrs. Eddy lovingly devoted her life to making this spiritual truth available to all those who hunger and thirst after righteousness. She knew that in giving Christian Science to the world, she was but restating in prayerful humility the pure Christianity which Jesus taught and lived."

"It was Mrs. Eddy who wrote (Pulpit and Press, p. 9), 'Practice not profession—goodness, not doctrines—spiritual understanding, not mere belief, gain the ear and right hand of omnipotence, and call down blessings infinite.'"

"Spiritual understanding discerns the truth about God and man in His image and likeness; spiritual worship practices this truth, and spiritual power demonstrates it in our present experience. Thus is Christian Science proved to be the restoration of pure Christianity."

LEGION MEET TERMED 'WHOLESALE BRAWL'

Harvard Paper Paints Convention 'Worse Than Subway Riot.'

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 12.—(AP)—The Harvard Crimson, undergraduate daily newspaper, terms the legion convention in Boston this week a "wholesale brawl" which was worse than a subway riot or a drunken football crowd.

The editorial brought immediate replies from Mayor Richard M. Russell, of Cambridge, and Ralph W. Robert, past commander of the Cambridge post of the American Legion. The latter demanded the immediate resignation of those students responsible for the editorial and said Harvard students had failed to be sufficiently patriotic on several occasions in the past.

No other country in the world, the Crimson said, "would countenance the spectacle of the recent American Legion convention in Boston. The paper termed the affair 'merely an excuse for a wholesale brawl' and continued that Boston had seen fit 'to allow a total relaxation of law and order during the stay in the Hub of the 'buddies who fought to make the world safe for democracy and come back to raise hell annually so no one can forget it.'"

Mayor Russell said he had attended several affairs during the Legion's stay in Boston but failed to see evidence warranting such an editorial. He said he saw many persons drunk but most of them were too young to be Legionnaires.

FORMER MIAMI HEADS METHODISM IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Dr. J. W. Tarbox, of Miami, Fla., today was consecrated first bishop of the Independent Methodist Church of Brazil in a ceremony at the Cattete Methodist church.

Bishop Tarbox spent many years in Brazil in church work. He retired several years ago, but returned to active work when Bishop James Cannon, Jr., arrived in Brazil this summer to aid in the formation of the Independent Brazilian church.

Potter's Wheel Bears Lost Longfellow Poem

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—A poem written by Henry Wadsworth Longfellow in his boyhood and hitherto unpublished has come to light through the gift of an eighteenth-century potter's wheel to the Museum of the Peaceful Arts, Dr. F. C. Brown, director, announced Saturday.

The wheel was in a pottery in Portland, Maine, which Longfellow often visited during his youthful years in Portland, and the poem probably was written in 1823, when the poet was 16. On one of his visits Longfellow wrote these four lines on a slip of paper:

"No handicraftsman's art
Can to our art compare;
We potters make our pots
Of what we potters are."

Longfellow placed the slip of paper on the potter's wheel and left, the donor of the wheel wrote in a letter accompanying the gift to the Museum of the Peaceful Arts. The potter found it there and was so struck with the fragment that he inscribed it in clay, which he then fired. The plaque bearing the verse was sold later and disappeared.

WHEREVER YOU ARE FIGHT YOUR COLD WITH VAPEX

Colds have a habit of striking you just at the wrong time. At the theater, at the dance, in the midst of work, your nose begins to run, your head begins to stuff up, and you begin to feel miserable.

It's silly to suffer this annoyance. For you can always keep Vapex handy. It fits snugly in a handbag or a vest pocket.

Vapex brings swift relief

In a minute's time, you can have all-day-long relief from colds. Simply put a drop of Vapex on your handkerchief. The vapor keeps its strength. No matter what the time or the place you can breathe the refreshing fragrance and feel your head clear, your nose stop snuffling, and your cold vanishing. Vapex has a delightful odor—as clean and refreshing as mountain air.

The efficacy of Vapex has been tested time and time again. But Vapex never had surer proof of its worth than during the time of its dramatic discovery. Then influenza was raging in England, but the men who were working with the ingredients now in Vapex completely escaped the disease.

A simple and easy way to use Vapex is to put a drop at each end of your pillow just before you go to bed. All night long, you breathe the soothing vapor. All night long it fights your cold. In the morning you awake—with a clear head and a refreshed feeling.

Be wary when some one offers you a product that is "just as good as Vapex and cheaper." Vapex is the inhalant approved by Good Housekeeping. Millions of bottles are sold yearly. It has never been successfully imitated.

And after all, a single application of Vapex costs only 2c. The $1 bottle contains fifty applications. Ask for V-A-P-E-X always and insist on obtaining it.

HOMEWARD BOUND WITH THE BULLDOGS, Oct. 12. Rex Enright, of North Carolina, sat in the press box at the Yale bowl, taking a final look at Georgia for "Chuck" Collins, his superior officer.

The Tarheels play Georgia this week-end in Athens. Rex already had seen the Bulldogs play Oglethorpe and knew how their end sweeps were going and how the forward passes were flying.

"What do you think of them," Rex was asked after the game.

"Easy for me," Rex replied. "I will tell Collins that if he sets his defense wide Georgia will split his line to pieces and if he bunches them in, Georgia will run around them. And then I will remind him that he is the head coach and that is his problem. I am happy to report that I won't have to look at the game."

THAT REFEREE WAS RIGHT.

Downes pulled a smart bit of work in the fourth period to get a breathing spell for his boys free of charge. Georgia had already received its quota of times out and could not ask for more without losing five yards.

They had just stopped Yale's last hard drive at a point inside the 1-yard line.

Downes looked at the ball and then signalled for time out. The referee started for the ball, then realized he could move it back but a few inches and stopped short. He looked at Downes searchingly as if wondering whether a fast one had been put over on him. It had, in a way.

THEY SHOULD HAVE KNOWN HIM!

Late in the fourth period Coach Harry Mehre sent Jim Patterson out to replace the worn out Tiger Bennett at guard. Patterson was dancing up and down in his excitement. He was wild to get going.

Coach Mehre gave the word and Patterson flew out to the referee shouting, "Tigah out, Tigah out."

The referee was disconcerted. He looked at the list of players in his hand.

"Whom do you replace," asked the referee in correct New England accents.

"Tigah!" shouted Patterson, "Don't you know Tigah?"

One of the boys who speaks Bostonese fairly well stepped in as interpreter and straightened out the puzzled referee and got Patterson into his proper place.

HOLLAND-ESSE PANTS ARE HINDRANCE.

One heard much uncomplimentary comment from the experts on the antiquated equipment Yale players wore. They had on the same old fashioned, bulky pants designed years ago by Hinkley and the same enormous shoulder pads that weigh a ton.

Slavish adherence to custom and tradition has kept Yale from adopting modern equipment of lighter weight.

Then, too, the baggy pants have so many loose holes that tacklers can grab the fastest halfback by the slack of his trousers and jerk him to earth. Other teams long since have adopted form-fitting pants but Yale still wears them flapping in the breeze.

"Albie Booth is bound to be the greatest halfback in the world," one expert affirmed. "He can gain ground in those pants."

Yale grew very tired at the hot afternoon wore to a close. Although over 30 men were used, all finished whipped down. Perhaps there is something to the theory that heavy equipment worked an unfair hardship on them.

LOYAL ALBIE WAS HURT.

Albie Booth is a prince of the blood in the eyes of New Haven. They seem to think he is a sort of deity on whom no plebeian hands must be laid.

Georgia was tackling Albie high. High tackling is the only way to stop a little back of Albie's type. If you reach for his legs, his legs aren't there. Every undersized elusive halfback expects to be grabbed around the shoulders and neck.

Yet every time Maffett or Dickens or Maddox or Stoinoff flagged Albie by the helmet and rode him down, the Yale stands boomed and boomed. Yale players, too, complained to officials.

It also seemed to be an unwritten law that not more than one man was to be allowed to tackle Albie at once. Absolutely not.

The officials taxed Georgia half the distance to the goal line once for what they said was roughing Albie and 15 yards again for tackling him out of bounds. They issued warning after warning, too.

This deification of Booth seems to be a sort of fetish in the section, a state of mind all out of proportion to the code of football and the principles of hard play.

Women Golfers Set For Tourney Start

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Eager for the start of the women's national amateur championship competition tomorrow, all but a few of 100 feminine golfers spent today resting and making final preparations for the six-day grind.

In the practice rounds only one of the contestants made the 18 holes under par. Marion Hollins, Santa Cruz, Cal., 1921 national champion, yesterday turned in a card of 38-42—80, one under women's par.

Edith Quier, of Reading, Pa., who has been shooting consistently in the low 80's, equalled par with an 81. Both are considered threats to the championship crown won four times by Glenna Collett, of New York City.

Maureen C. Cunt, of New York, the Canadian women's champion, and Mrs. O. Hill, of Kansas City, 1920 western women's champion, and Miss Peggy Watlies, of Buffalo, N. Y., had 83's.

Tenth-Inning Rally Wins for Bancroft

HAVANA, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Chuck Klein's single in the tenth scored Walter Gilbert with the run that gave Dave Bancroft's all-stars a 5-4 victory over Jewel Ena contingent of major leaguers in the third game of the series today. Bancroft's team now has won two of the three games played.

Records fall.

MIDDLEBURY, Conn., Oct. 12.—(UN)—Eight outdoor records were broken in the first day of the national outdoor races here today, and six of these stand as world marks.

Texas Christian Issues Challenge

By Gale Talbot, Associated Press Staff Writer.

DALLAS, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Texas Christian University issued a challenge to the Southwest football conference in the overwhelming defeat of the University of Arkansas Razorbacks, 40 to 0, in the opening game of the championship race Saturday at Fort Worth.

The Christians had been expected to win but their most sanguine supporter had not anticipated such a dazzling display of offensive football as the Schmidtmeyer uncovered in their stadium. After the opening period, largely a punting duel, the speedy, hard driving Frog backs scored almost at will through the weary Arkansas line.

First Pictures of Carnegie's Victory Over Georgia Tech

George Kavel, Carnegie halfback, is shown at the top as starting through a gaping hole in the Georgia Tech line in the game of last Saturday. Kavel was one of the stars that ripped the Jacket defense for 31 points. The play above carried the ball past the ten-yard line. "Sugar" Cain, Jacket fullback, is No. 44. The marker may be seen in the picture. Eyth followed this play with a touchdown. Below is the first kick-off. Ed Herron, Jacket end, kicked off and then went down and tackled "Pete" Flannigan, Carnegie halfback. Flannigan may be seen with his feet off the ground. The Jacket defense was good for only a few minutes in the early part of the game. Both photos were taken by The Pittsburgh Press' staff photographers and were obtained for The Constitution through their courtesy and that of The Press.

BULLDOGS SHARE GRID SPOTLIGHT

South Carolina and Auburn Come in For Attention of Fans.

By Ralph L. Sanders, United News Staff Correspondent.

Except for backward glances toward Georgia's 18-14 victory over Yale and Georgia Tech's defeat at Pittsburgh, fans in Dixie dismissed the preliminary bouts of the first four weeks of the football season and waited for the Southern conference to get down to serious business a week hence.

When Alabama meets Tennessee at Tuscaloosa next Saturday, there will be a battle appropriate to the start of serious conference conflict, as the fans will tell you.

Eight teams stand at the top of the standings today: Alabama, Florida and North Carolina with two conference wins each, and five others, Georgia Tech, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Tennessee and Clemson, with single victories within the loop. Tulane, Mississippi Aggies, Virginia Military Institute, Washington and Lee and Georgia have not yet entered the lists.

South Carolina and Auburn, neither in the topnotch class, provided the discussion over Saturday's games. South Carolina, which defeated Duke and then lost drastically to Georgia Tech, came back to beat the high-scoring Louisiana State Tigers by a squeak, 7 to 6. That game counted out a team which had come to be considered an important factor in the race.

Auburn, which lost its first game to Birmingham-Southern and barely defeated Spring Hill, went to Jacksonville and held Florida's Gators to 7-0. That small score might be counted a moral victory for Chet Wynne's Plainsmen.

North Carolina added further proof that its power lies in an offensive that has been good enough so far to offset a weak defense. Maryland scored 21 points against the Tarheels this season. The kicking problem is likely to become acute. Graydon is rather fragile.

The rattled sophomores who attempted to carry on the defense were rather disappointing and yet in the final quarter they were playing football that was as good as that which Carnegie Tech's second team was showing.

ENDS GOOD.

Tech's ends played very good football.

Tartans Left Engineers With Food for Thought

Disaster and Its Lessons May Make Jackets a Rugged November Team.

By Ralph McGill.

Georgia Tech's invasion of Pittsburgh and its accompanying disaster at the hands of Carnegie Tech will very likely serve to make of the Jackets a very rugged November football team.

The Jacket linemen spent most of the afternoon sitting down on the heel of their pants or lying on their dorsal numbers. Such a position is a natural one for meditation and the Jacket linemen, from tackle to tackle, no doubt did much of it.

Frank Speer and Vance Marze worked diligently and ably but were outplayed. They know by now that they are overweight and that instead of charging they were meeting the play at the line.

Ike Farmer and the guards know that the old quarterback sneak was worked on them several times, once for a touchdown.

The sophomore backs know that they were derailed in their duty many times and that the coaching lessons learned were forgotten. The Jackets have done a lot of thinking.

This week will find them bearing down at the Flats learning to play football. They know they need to.

HOBBLING ABOUT.

Doug Graydon and Earl Dunlap, who were taken out of the game early with injured knees, were hobbling about on the train coming back.

Their absence undoubtedly served to permit Carnegie to run the score up to a total it will never have reached. With Graydon out the only long kicker, who might have kicked that football up the field and out of danger, was gone.

With Dunlap out the only experienced man at diagnosing plays and the best tackler on the team was out. He was also the second best punter.

FIRST STARTS.

Pat Barron and Jap Hart, two sophomore halfbacks, were playing their first big college game. Neither of them had played freshman football, their work being too heavy for it.

With Graydon and Dunlap out the only possible pass attack was gone. No one else can throw passes. Tech's experienced backfield talent is very scarce indeed. This season. The kicking problem is likely to become acute. Graydon is rather fragile.

The rattled sophomores who attempted to carry on the defense were rather disappointing and yet in the final quarter they were playing football that was as good as that which Carnegie Tech's second team was showing.

ENDS GOOD.

Tech's ends played very good football.

GUARDS SWAMP FORT AT POLO

Moran and Christian in Star Roles as Post Loses By 13-0.

BY WALTER P. WILKES.

With Lieutenant Wesley Moran and P. D. Christian, Jr., showing the way in a brilliant exhibition of offensive play, the Governor's Horse Guard polo team continued just where it left off the preceding week and snowed the Fort McPherson four under Sunday by a 13-0 margin in the fourth contest of the season between this pair.

It was a rough affair.

This leaves the Guards with a 3-1 lead in games to date, and of the trio of victories they have gained this Sunday was by far the most convincing. Contrary to expectations, the Post team fell off instead of improving in their work, and it was quite evident that, despite the all-around good play of the championship class, it affords every shot that a champion golfer is required to know and it should get better with another year's good seasoning," the visiting golfer said.

Tolley was high in his praise for the new course. "It is a beautiful layout with just enough natural hazards to make it belong in the championship class. It affords every shot that a champion golfer is required to know and it should get better with another year's good seasoning," the visiting golfer said.

These new championship contenders—Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin—have established themselves as dangerous rivals and a fourth, Illinois, gives promise of taking a hand in the struggle.

Michigan showed promise Saturday in defeating Purdue, 14 to 12. Minnesota's scoreless tie game with Stanford proved that the one-sided defeat by Vanderbilt a week ago was not a true indication of the Gophers' strength. Wisconsin's 24-0 victory over Carnegie stamped them as a title possibility.

Illinois opens its conference schedule against Northwestern this week and, while a victory for the Illini would be a decided upset, the game is far from a set up for Northwestern.

Illinois' 27-0 victory over Butler demonstrated that Zuppke has his team working smoothly. Iowa met its second consecutive defeat in intersection tests, losing to Copeland, 19 to 12, and is conceded little chance of victory against Purdue Saturday. Indiana showed considerable improvement in holding Oklahoma A. & M. to a 7-0 tie, but even the most optimistic Hoosier fans do not expect a victory over Minnesota this week.

TOLLEY PRAISES EAST LAKE LINKS

Big Britisher Equals Par in Friendly Match Sunday.

A wonderful golf course and plenty long and tough, is Cyril Tolley's opinion of the new East Lake golf course after playing over the 6,700-yard course Sunday morning in a friendly round with Big Bob Jones, Chick Ridley and Dr. W. C. Warren.

Tolley, former British amateur and French open champion, was paired with "The Colonel," Bob's father, and ended all square with Chick and Dr. Warren. Ridley and Dr. Warren had three strokes handicap.

At the start of the match, Chick and Dr. Warren, both having seen Tolley's great play, wanted a handicap. Colonel Jones, who is no weak golfer himself, argued against the strokes but with a former champion and his son's best friend as a partner he consented to give the opposition three strokes.

Bobby was unable to play in the foursome, due to some business matters that needed his attention.

Tolley had the best medal round, a brilliant par eagle on the long and difficult course. Ridley was not far behind and Colonel Jones and Dr. Warren shot better golf than ordinarily, partly due to the excellent example this leaves the Guards with a 3-1 lead in games to date, and of the trio of victories they have gained this Sunday was by far the most convincing. Contrary to expectations, the Post team fell off instead of improving in their work, and it was quite evident that, despite the all-around good play of the championship class, it affords every shot that a champion golfer is required to know and it should get better with another year's good seasoning," the visiting golfer said.

Tolley was hitting his drives straight down the fairway with ample transportation attached to each one. His second shots were also pleasant to witness but his putting was what he considered only fair but enough to overcome a three-stroke handicap. Big Bob Jones, substituting for his famous son, was also adding a punch to the game and the two forced Dr. Warren and Ridley to exert all the energy possible to stave off a disastrous defeat.

Tolley was high in his praise for the new course. "It is a beautiful layout with just enough natural hazards to make it belong in the championship class. It affords every shot that a champion golfer is required to know and it should get better with another year's good seasoning," the visiting golfer said.

BULLDOGS TAKE WIN CASUALLY, LOOK TO FUTURE

Second Yale Touchdown Raises Point in New Rule Code.

By Ed Danforth.

HOMEWARD BOUND WITH THE GEORGIA FOOTBALL SQUAD, Oct. 12.—Far into the night a group of distinguished officials and equally notable coaches sat in a suite of rooms in a New York hotel and debated that second Yale touchdown that made Georgia's 18-14 victory so hard to earn. The law books of the game were brought out; the play was taken apart and exhibited on the stand. The majority vote of the gridiron baristas was that Yale's second touchdown was illegal.

Chick Meehan, head coach of New York University, and Tom Thorpe, the famous referee, might be said to be attorneys for the defense and the prosecution. Meehan said the touchdown should not have been allowed; Thorpe contended he would have done as the officials in the game did—allowed the touchdown without hesitation.

The rules declare that any kicked ball can be recovered by the kicking side but cannot be advanced. Yale kicked off to Georgia to start the third period, a Yale end recovered the ball in the air as it bounced from the arms of Weddington Kelly, Georgia end, and ran for the marker. The belief is that the rule will have to be rewritten; it is not clear now on the point.

Yet its spirit probably is to treat a recovered "air line" fumble as if it were a lateral pass. Thorpe argued that Coach Harry Mehre MIGHT have had a man coming around behind to take a lateral from Kelly. This supposition was hoisted by the sticklers for the letter of the law. Oddly enough Coach Mehre, of Georgia, sided with Thorpe in the belief that it was a legal touchdown.

OFFICIALS INNOCENT.

The officials who worked the game at New Haven apparently never suspected they had given a questionable decision. They were happily innocent of having made a test case of one of the fundamental rules of the revised code.

Football scores, however, are beyond all referendum. That is a happy condition.

Georgia's young men were bouncing home all day long Sunday on the seaboard immersed in their interminable games of bridge or sleeping like bird dogs puppies after a long day in the field. They were not concerned with the legal aspect of Yale's second touchdown; they were basking in the glow that came from their own third counter.

ARRIVE MONDAY.

They will arrive in Athens early Monday morning and no doubt will learn they have become famous. They had a foretaste of it by reading the New York papers this morning. They were given credit in glistening phrases by every observer who came up from Gotham or down from Boston.

The Bulldogs have business in hand. North Carolina is the next game and incidentally the last Georgia will play on the home field this year. The Tarheel battle will inaugurate the conference season for them.

The Bulldogs even found time to mention the North Carolina problem on the long ride home. One would think that heating Yale was just another ball game for the home boys.

GRACEFUL VICTORS.

Your correspondent never has seen a squad take a victory more casually, more gracefully, than these Athens boys.

Few scratches and bumps were absorbed.

Red Leathers got to play but 10 minutes of the second period. He came out at the half dazed from a blow on the head and still was woozily gathering when the third period started. He received medical attention and spent the last half on a cot in the dressing room. However, he was well at the finish and today is no worse for his visit into dreamland.

OTHER INJURIES.

A Yale thumb was stuck in Captain Maffett's eye; Sperry Tassapoulos is limping from a twisted leg; yet neither will be seriously inconvenienced for the Tarheel game.

While championship contenders—Michigan, Minnesota and Wisconsin—have established themselves as dangerous rivals and a fourth, Illinois, gives promise of taking a hand in the struggle.

Three Important Games Face Local Prep Elevens This Week

PURPLE-POETS TILT FEATURES GRIDIRON SLATE

G. M. A. Invades Annapolis for Clash With Navy Plebes.

By Roy White.

Bow's High and Lanier High, of Macon, will furnish the major attraction for prep football fans during the coming week. They will play at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon at Spiller field.

Tech High will meet University Saturday at Spiller's and Marist and Deatur will have a rest week.

G. M. A. will leave Wednesday for Annapolis, Md., where on Saturday afternoon they will meet the Navy Plebes in the most important game on the Cadet schedule. It is the first time in many years that a local eleven has played an Army or Navy team.

Atlanta prep teams, after a slow start in the early games, are rounding into midseason form and one of the most successful seasons in the history is the forecast at present.

G. M. A. and Tech High fought an opening battle to a scoreless tie. The Cadets came back strong and defeated the Albertville (Ala.) eleven, 20 to 0, for its second defeat in three years, and played a smart, aggressive game last week-end against the McCallie eleven from Chattanooga.

Tech High, due to its great strength in a veteran forward wall, came back strong to beat Easley High, 18 to 0, in the second game and had another good game last week-end with Madison Aggies at Spiller's. The backfield worked better in the Madison game than at any time this season and there was plenty of co-ordination in the plays.

MATERIAL PLENTIFUL.
Boys' High, with an abundance of material, has worked the two teams successfully this far. They have won. They were given a real scare in the second game with McCallie but came out on the long end of a 7-to-0 score. The Hurricane continued its gridiron play in the Savannah game and should give Lanier High a real battle Friday afternoon.

All of the smaller teams in the prep league are showing up better this year than ever before. Commercial has at last developed a team that is causing a little trouble and worry on the lighter teams. Commercial will play Douglasville Friday afternoon in Douglasville.

Cochran has a fighting team of youngsters at Marist and that is well up in every department of play. The Cadets will have an open date in their schedule this week. University school is scheduled to make its bow to the Atlanta prep fans this week under the leadership of Hank Hooke, former Georgia Tech player and star basketball player.

FULTON-RUSSELL GAME.
Fulton High and Russell High will start the week's activities off with a game Tuesday afternoon at East Point. It was scheduled to be played last Friday afternoon but was postponed.

Both Fulton and Russell will have two hard games during the week for after their game Tuesday, Fulton will go to Marietta Friday to play the LaGrange High eleven and Russell will meet Griffin High Friday afternoon on the Spaulding county gridiron.

Tech High and Boys' High had unusually hard games during the week-end and both came out on the short end of the count. Tech High lost a 7-to-0 verdict to Madison Aggies, at Spiller field, and Savannah High nosed out the Hurricanes by a 7-to-6 count Saturday afternoon in Savannah.

G. M. A. flashed a brilliant offensive attack to beat a strong McCallie eleven, 20 to 0, Saturday morning. The Cadets used every player in uniform and the team was not weakened to any degree. The line played a great game, particularly in the first half when the visitors were held to only one first down.

Cochran Padgett and McQuarrie will give the Cadets a light work-out this afternoon and follow up with a long heavy scrimmage Tuesday afternoon. The team will leave the city at noon Wednesday for Annapolis.

Experience Gained at Pittsburgh Should Help Tech Later.

ball. They had no help at all from the tackles, that is comparatively none. The entire Tech line seemed flat and slow. In fact the game might be said for the entire team. It never got going.

Carnegie's four red flames in the backfield, used reverses, double and triple passes and other intricate plays with an exactness that was startling. They used a count which worried the Jackets no little.

"They counted one, two, three, four," said Frank Speer. "As their back in motion started we'd watch him and then the ball would be snapped on the count of one, one time, or three or four the next and maybe on two the next. It had a tendency to make us wait without realizing that we were doing it."

GREAT EXPERIENCE.
The showing of the Jackets, while disappointing, did give them invaluable experience which they had to learn some time.

Carnegie Tech had one of the greatest teams in the nation Saturday. And the Jackets may have done their old friends, Notre Dame, a great favor. The Plaid eleven reached a peak against Tech. It may not sound like it, but they will win.

Dunlap and Graydon may be lost to the Auburn game. Mike Chambers may have the injured knees ready within three days.

BAD GASH.
Bob Strickland, who played an unusually good game as a substitute fullback, is coming back with seven stitches in his head as the result of an automobile accident on the way to the game.

The taxi in which Strickland and Pat Barron were riding stopped suddenly and was bumped by the one following. Strickland was catapulted through the glass as far as his head and shoulders. His head was gashed. Barron was only shaken a bit.

Marce has an injured hand and Jim Brooke a bad finger. Others of the squad are in good condition.

OTHER BIG THREE.
The main topics of conversation in the return, other than their own game, were Auburn, Georgia and Vanderbilt. Auburn looms as a real test after their game with Florida Saturday when they will be able to win from Georgia in December.

Vanderbilt, by beating V. P. I. 40 to 0, while Stanford was able to get no better than a tie with Minnesota, also occupied much of the talk. The Commodores won from Minnesota a week ago by a 33-to-7 score. V. P. I. scored three touchdowns on North Carolina and yet was halted by the Commodore second team.

Tech will begin preparation for Auburn Monday.

'Haig' Beats Armour For Michigan Crown

PONTIAC, Mich., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Walter Haig defeated Tommy Armour, 3 and 2, in the 36-hole final of the Michigan P. G. A. tournament today at Birmingham Golf Club to win his first championship of the year.

Haig and the present National P. G. A. champion fought a close battle during the morning rounds and neither was more than 2 up until the 11th hole in the afternoon. Haig took the 10th and 11th holes to become 3 up and ended the match at the 16th as Armour found a tree between his ball and the cup and got into two traps before he picked up.

THE SPORTLIGHT

ONE OF THE THRILLERS.

IT ISN'T ONCE in five seasons that a big football crowd gets a chance to absorb all the thrills the Yale-Georgia game offered on Saturday in the Yale bowl. At New Haven it isn't often that one anywhere gets a chance to see a team fight with such continued desperation as the Georgia team did when it came from behind to get two touchdowns in the third and fourth period after enough tough breaks to take the heart out of two football teams.

In the third period Yale was leading, 14 to 6, the second Blue touchdown resulting from a fumble on the kickoff that Barres, of Yale, turned into a sudden touchdown. That was a wallop under the heart right off the jump. After this Georgia made three marches into scoring distance with these dismal results:

One touchdown called back after a fine gallop by Downes.

One fumble on Yale's 2-yard line.

Another fumble on Yale's 1-yard line.

And after this Georgia was again back at midfield with the score still 14 to 6 against her.

And for the fourth time Georgia went back to work until Chandler threw his pass to Vernon Smith on a touchdown play.

Then take the fourth period—Yale was leading, 14 to 12, and Yale had the ball on Georgia's 1-foot line with less than five minutes to play. The odds against Georgia here were 40 to 1.

But the Blue assault was thrown back and in three minutes, through a great run by Mott, Georgia was on her way over the Blue line with Roberts making the final plunge.

This Georgia team is one of the best in football for 1930 and one of the games of all the years you can think about.

Yale, not as well conditioned as it should have been, fought itself out in a vain effort to stop an attack that never slowed down for a double breath.

TEAMS TO RECKON WITH.

NOTRE DAME's victory over the Navy was no surprise, as a Notre Dame victory never is a surprise, anywhere or at any time.

But Carnegie Tech in beating Georgia Tech 31 to 0 served notice on the field that another Skibo cyclone is blowing up and this means trouble for all concerned. Wally Steffens has one of his best teams all geared up and not even the redoubtable Notre Dame array is safe against the coming invasion of this Tartan clan.

In the mid-west, Northwestern and Wisconsin, as the forecasts all took into consideration, stepped forward as two of the strongest conference challengers.

But the heroes of the mid-west were on the Minnesota team. Beaten 33 to 7 a week ago by Vanderbilt, a powerful southern team, Fritz Crisler's Minnesota team came back to hold Pop Warner's strong Stanford team to a 0-0 tie.

This must stand as one of the star performances of the day—one of the best performances this season can now. Here again there was a fine spirit that brought a young team up from the rut in just a week to fight off one of the best teams in football, a team abounding in bulk and speed.

They fall fast in the conference. The season is barely on and yet such teams as Purdue, Ohio State, Chicago are already registered on the beaten side.

Michigan, after a weak attack in her first two games, came romping from behind to score two touchdowns against Purdue with another keen revival, which should increase now as the season moves along.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED.

BEFORE nightfall on the 11th of October Yale and Princeton, Bulldog and Tiger, rampant in the days of old, stood among the beaten.

Brown's team, greatly improved over last year, had more power than the Tiger could stop, in spite of some hard fighting at the finish. Brown will be no easy spot for anyone this season and Yale may have her trouble this week.

N. Y. U.'s victory over Villanova gave Chick Meehan's violet array a fast start. Villanova is always hard to beat and N. Y. U.'s decisive victory means a much better team than Meehan had a year ago.

Harvard, Pennsylvania, Army, Dartmouth and Cornell, among the stronger teams in the east, were not pressed or tested. Their troubles start this week.

Lou Little's Columbia team is already well ahead of last year's strength.

One of the features of the week-end was Temple's victory over a strong Bucknell team. Heinie Miller and Bert Bell, old Pennsylvania stars, have done a fine job with a full share of green material.

Vanderbilt in the south followed up her northern invasion by beating V. P. I. 40 to 0. Any team that can score 72 points against Minnesota and V. P. I. on successive Saturdays has an attack that will go a long way through any season.

Tennessee, Alabama, Florida and North Carolina, all strong southern teams, slipped through but the Tarheels had a close call against Maryland. Tennessee has been unbeaten now for four years. The Volunteers have one of the greatest records in football and they apparently have another strong team ready for the new season with a far tougher schedule than they had last fall.

Title Go Postponed Farrell and Turnesa Win Golf Exhibition

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Mid-golf, of Philadelphia, recognized in his own state and in New York as flyweight champion, has injured a hand in training and as a result the first title bout of the indoor season has been called off.

Wolga was to battle Frankie Genaro, of New York, who holds the title recognition of the N. B. A., over the 15-round route in Madison Square Garden Friday night. Madison Square Garden officials announced today that the date will be filled by the bout between Justo Suarez, sensational Argentine lightweight, and Louis Kid Kaplan, of Meriden, Conn., former holder of the world's featherweight championship, originally scheduled for October 22.

FRISCH HURT.
BALTIMORE, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Frankie Frisch, captain and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, National league baseball champions, suffered a bruised leg muscle in an exhibition game here today that may end his present barnstorming tour.

BRONXVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Johnny Farrell, of Mansfield, and Joe Turnesa, of Elmford, defeated Jess Sweetser, of Bronxville, and Gene Homans, of Englewood, finalist in the national amateur golf championship in an 18-hole pro-amateur exhibition at the Sivanoy Club today.

The pro had a best ball of 33-32-65 against 34-33-67 for Sweetser and Homans and led 2-up at the turn. The individual scores were Turnesa 69, Farrell 70, Homans 70, Sweetser 72.

Oklahoma Leads Big Six Grid Race

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Oklahoma leads the Big Six football race today by virtue of administering the champion Nebraska Cornhuskers their first conference defeat since the new circuit began to function with the 1928 gridiron season.

Regarded by many as a likely up-setter of Nebraska in this opening titanic clash they apparently have a margin by which the Sooners accomplished the feat was a surprise.

Second Yale Touchdown Raises Point in New Rule Code.

ment, then set out behind his wedge of interferers straight down the middle of the field. He never varied a degree from his course.

After the game Austin said only one man threatened to tackle him and that man was out down from the side. The path simply opened up ahead of him and he proceeded with none to lay hands on him.

That touchdown, so cheaply won, gave Georgia a vast advantage in being able to force Yale to do all the work in the first half and save its own strength for the finish.

Marion Dickens made a 14-yard run from a spinner play inside Yale's right tackle that was a brilliant exhibition of fighting every inch. He was hit by at least three tacklers but kept his feet under him.

HARD DRIVING.
Buster Mott, off on the same play, had to jerk loose from several tacklers and was down on one knee twice in going his 25 yards on the winning touchdown march. It was a head-long lunge to free himself from one of these men that caused him to sprawl in the open field with a touch-down in sight and blockers ahead of him.

Downes' scoring on the kickoff was the first time in the history of Yale Bowl that an opening boot had been so brought back. It was the second time also in postwar gridiron history at Georgia that a Bulldog has scored from the kickoff. Dick Hartley ran 85 yards with one against a South Carolina team in Athens.

And if the game was partly insured by Downes' mad race, it definitely turned in the fourth period when Georgia again will ride the rails, going to Dayton, Ohio, where they will meet Dayton University Friday night.

The Gold and Black squad is intact for the Dayton game, only minor injuries having been sustained by the players against Manhattan. Dan Kenzie, man-mountain tackle, lost a front tooth in the fracas.

The Petrels took the opportunity Saturday to watch Villanova, one of their forthcoming foes, in action, and while N. Y. U. won, the boys reported Villanova as strong.

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, Mayor I. N. Bagdikian and other distinguished Georgians who accompanied the Oglethorpe team to New York followed the team home on a later train. On this train also were Coaches Harry Robertson and Nutty Campbell.

East's Scorers Led By Colgate Machine

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Andy Kerr's mighty Colgate array has jumped into the lead in the race for eastern scoring honors with 178 points in three games. Closely pressing the Maroons are Cornell, with 174, and Dartmouth with 173 points, respectively.

Of the 28 unbeaten and untied teams in the east, 13 boast uncrossed goal lines. Colgate and Dartmouth being among them.

Although Colgate leads the scoring table, Fordham has compiled the best average with 144 points in two games, or 72 per game.

GIANTS BEAT BEATS.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(UN)—The New York Giants, with Benny Friedman directing, defeated the Chicago Bears 12 to 0 today in a hard-fought football game at Wrigley field before 15,000 fans.

Georgia used an assortment of spinner plays inside and outside tackle to beat Yale. Only one end run was called and only four forward passes were thrown.

Downes kept whipping the Yale line by hurling his power at first the strong then the weak side of the line. There was a world of deception in the way the Georgia backs executed the plays too, and the spectators were almost as confused as the Yale team as to which side of the line had been hit by the Georgia ball carrier.

One would imagine from this report that Georgia showed great power in being able to smash what had been termed a great Yale line with plunging plays. Well, that's exactly right.

No Georgia team since the war—and that goes for the teams of which "Big" McCrury was the fullback—has displayed such drive on running plays through the line.

Any day that a team can neglect the ends and keep out of the air and still score three touchdowns one can be safe in saying that team has plenty of iron in it.

That Georgia was able to play a choice hammer tune on the Yale defense partly was due to the character of the Blue set.

SCOUTS TRICKED.
Yale scouts had seen Georgia skipping around the ends against Oglethorpe and Mercer and throwing passes friskily. So they advised their ends to play wide and kept the secondary back looking for passes. The ends stubbornly kept on playing wide, waiting for Georgia to run their way. The secondary kept on tip-toes waiting for passes that never came, except when Yale was looking for a punt.

So Quarterback Downes kept on blazing away with his heavy artillery, getting six to right yards every time he jerked the lanyard, and Yale could not readjust their style of play to meet it.

It was learned after the game through grapevine channels that the Yale battle plan was to keep the ball away from Georgia as long as possible by never kicking before fourth down and to throw everything they had into a first half offensive that would give them a big lead. They feared Georgia would kick before fourth down and to throw everything they had into a first half offensive that would give them a big lead. They feared Georgia would kick before fourth down and to throw everything they had into a first half offensive that would give them a big lead.

FOOLISH CHANCE.
Booth was guilty of taking a foolish chance a few moments before by throwing a forward pass down 34 yards from goal. The punt out of bounds on the 5-yard line was called hard by Georgia. As it was Jack Roberts intercepted the pass and he got away for a long run back to Yale and this time Albie drove his team inside Georgia's 8-yard line on power plays.

On third down Booth completed a short pass to Beane and with interference to help him Beane started for the goal line six strides away. The first Georgia tacklers were blocked out, but Marion Dickens, the tackling fool, knifed through and Beane, promptly fumbled the ball back to Yale and this time Albie drove his team inside Georgia's 8-yard line and the great momentum killed in a split second.

Imagine, if that touchdown had been scored Georgia would have been facing 21-12 handicap and would have needed two touchdowns to win instead of one. The game was saved right there. Dickens was the boy. He took up where Downes left off. The game was hung between the individual exploits of those two boys.

Russell To See Bulldogs, 'Gators

SAVANNAH, Ga., Oct. 12.—(AP)—Governor-Designate Richard B. Russell, Jr., has written President Thomas M. Hoynes, of the Chamber of Commerce, accepting his invitation to attend the University of Georgia football game here on Saturday, November 1.

2,000 Young Baptists Plan To Attend Atlanta Meeting

All Southern Colleges Will Be Represented at Student Conference October 30 to November 2.

Baptist officials said here Sunday that 2,000 Baptist students, representing all colleges of the south, are expected to attend the second quadrennial session of the All-Southern Baptist Student conference here October 30 to November 2.

The first session of the conference was held four years ago at Birmingham with 1,651 delegates present. Since that time, according to Dr. Frank H. Leavell, of Nashville, secretary of the student work of the Southern Baptist convention, there has been a marked growth in the organization.

Dr. Leavell said that scores of new Baptist Student Union organizations have been formed since the Birmingham gathering, not only in Baptist institutions but other colleges as well. At present there are unions in all southern states meeting annually with the exception of the quadrennial year. Once in the college life of each student there is a southwide conference, such as the one to be held here.

Three subjects are on the program for discussion here: Student problems, missions, and Christian citizenship. The keynote of the conference is, "Christ, My Only Necessity."

Those on the program, other than outstanding students, include: Dr. W. J. McGlothlin, Greenville, S. C., president of the Southern Baptist convention; Mrs. W. J. Cox, Memphis, president.

Is Mother of Eight

"The first year after I got married I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was so weak that the minute I would start to do something I would feel badly. It did me a lot of good. Since then I have taken the Vegetable Compound off and on whenever I needed it. I am now the mother of eight children and I still recommend this medicine for it makes me feel younger and stronger."—Mrs. Orecene Godfrey, 103 Cumberland Street, Woonsocket, Rhode Island.

EDUCATED CHRISTIAN MOTHERS

Mrs. Samuel M. Inman

It may surprise some of our friends to know that Agnes Scott's records show that over 40% of its roll require assistance; which is given in the form of Scholarships, Loan Funds, or Credits for service—this last preferable and almost a prerequisite.

It is also remarkable how many of the leaders in each year's student body come from this group.

Students of history agree that the outstanding men of the world were blessed by having Mothers of marked intelligence and great force of character.

It is of interest, therefore, that the percentage of home-makers among the graduates of Agnes Scott is higher than in any other Class A college in this country, and those not marrying are equipped for positions of responsibility.

Such a college with its present possibilities should be a great asset in the future life of our city. Your interest in Agnes Scott at this time would be not only a blessing to you but priceless in the good it will accomplish.

Mr. Inman often said that the future of America was in the hands of the Mothers of America. "Therefore," he said, "give the Mothers a Christian education and the future of America is safe."

Army of Workers Removes Traces Of Departed Fair

While hundreds of spectators thronged the Lakewood Midway, enjoying the rides that remained open, an army of workmen was busy throughout Sunday clearing away exhibits that have been on display at the Southeastern Fair during last week.

The L. J. Heth Carnival Company was loaded on a special train shortly after midnight Saturday and left the city for Columbus, where it will open today.

All live stock was moved out of the park Sunday. The Firestone Farms' Guernsey and Holstein herds are en route to Missouri, where they will be entered in the National Dairy cattle show this week.

Various other exhibits were carted away on trucks during the morning for different parts of the state, some to be entered in other fairs.

Despite unfavorable weather conditions during the middle of the week, when, on two days, outdoor programs had to be postponed, officials of the fair were more than pleased with the results of the sixteenth annual showing. The attendance far exceeded that of last year, executives who said exhibits were of a higher order than ever before.

ECONOMIC DANGER SEEN BY PRELATE

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—(AP)—William Cardinal O'Donnell, archbishop of Boston and dean of the American hierarchy, today called upon leaders of industry and finance to take steps to avert in some measure the catastrophe that threatens as a consequence of unemployment.

Speaking to delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention who attended mass at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, Cardinal O'Donnell said:

"This coming winter we are going to have very hard times. According to all signs we are going to have very disagreeable times. Now is the time for those who control industry, those who control the banking systems, to stop and think that, united, and co-operating with this great movement which is going on for the welfare of all, for the welfare of the whole nation, we may avert in some measure at least the catastrophe that threatens."

BURGESS CHILDREN'S STORIES

PETER ENLISTS HELP.
By Thornton W. Burgess.

With friends in trouble, needing aid, there is no time to be afraid.
—Peter Rabbit.

Peter Rabbit was greatly distressed. Over in the Green Forest, Lightfoot the Deer and another Deer of about his own size had fought until at last their antlers became locked; and there they were, head to head, unable to separate. All the Green Forest knew about it. It seemed as if every one had paid that part of the Green Forest a visit. Peter Rabbit had not heard of the fight in time to see it, but he had heard of the accident, and, of course, he had hurried over there. Peter's heart was filled with pity.

Peter knew that if only Farmer Brown's Boy would come along, all would be well. Peter has great faith in Farmer Brown's Boy. So he had done his best to try to think of some way of getting Farmer Brown's Boy over there. Finally Peter saw Sammy Jay. Sammy flew over and alighted quite near Peter.

"Do you know where Farmer Brown's Boy is right now?" inquired Peter.

"No," said Sammy. "I don't know where he is right now, but only a little while ago he was over in the Old Orchard picking apples. What do you want to know for?"

"I want to get him to come and help Lightfoot," said he.

"Don't be foolish," Peter said. "Sammy. 'If those two fellows can get themselves apart, Farmer Brown's Boy certainly can't get them apart.' 'I believe he could,' replied Peter.

NATIONALISTS PLAN BRUENING ATTACK

BERLIN, Oct. 12.—(AP)—Decision to introduce a resolution of non-confidence in the Bruening government when the reichstag opens tomorrow was taken today by a meeting of the nationalist party. The nationalists also resolved to propose a bill exempting all persons from punishment for past offenses committed in the interest of politics.

"somewhat," he declared. "The thing to do now is to get him over here."

"That ought not to be difficult," replied Sammy. "My cousin, Blacky the Crow, and I can get him almost any time, if he isn't too busy."

"What are you all taking about?" demanded Ol' Mistah Buzzard, as he dropped down on the ground beside Peter.

Peter told him. Then Sammy Jay explained what he proposed to do. "I'll get my cousin, Blacky the Crow," said he, "and some of his flock, and I'll get two or three of my family and we'll all set up a great screaming. Farmer Brown's Boy will know that something has happened and he'll want to find out what it is; and if he isn't too busy, he'll come over to find out."

"Ah reckon that's a good plan, Berr Jay," said Ol' Mistah Buzzard. "Ah reckon Ah can help. Ah'll just sail round and round up in the sky right over those two silly Deer. Farmer Brown's Boy will hear you-all, then he'll see me, and Ah reckon he'll hurry right over."

"Goody!" cried Peter. "That's just the very thing. Hurry and do it right away."

So Sammy Jay went to look for Blacky the Crow and pass the word along to members of his own family; and Ol' Mistah Buzzard mounted up in the air and began to sail round and round, and round and round, right where Lightfoot the Deer and the other Deer lay.

Paroled Convict Needs Pardon To Gain Million

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—(UN)—Paroled convict, informed that he had just inherited $1,000,000, had to beg Governor Louis Emmerson's pardon tonight in order to get the money.

Louis Vargas, 30, served two years in Joliet penitentiary after being convicted of larceny. He was paroled later, thereupon becoming a prosperous restaurant owner here; his father, Eduardo Vargas, importer and rancher of Maracibo, Venezuela, he said, had died recently and left him $1,000,000.

Young Vargas' conviction left him without his American citizenship. In petitioning the governor for a complete pardon he said he would have difficulty leaving the United States without it, and upon getting his legacy, would be barred from returning.

popular than this one of Pierret. It suits grown up and children of all ages, is easy to develop and adaptable to almost every fabric. As portrayed, two colors of satin, yellow and green were combined with a trimming of pompons, and frills to match. Cotton prints, percale, unfinished cambric, albatross, radium silk and cotton crepe are also good for this model. The pattern supplies the cap and suit.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 6-8, 10-12 years for children; 14-16 years for miss., and 38-40; 42-44 inches bust measure for adults. To make the suit for a 38-40-inch size requires 8 3/4 yards of 27-inch material. The cape requires 7-8 yard.

THE GUMPS—STAND BACK

The MURDER at the VICARAGE

BY AGATHA CHRISTIE

INSTALLMENT XVII.

"I'll get the station," said Inspector Slack and took up the telephone. He spoke down it.

"And now," he said, replacing the receiver, "we'll get to work on this room."

He looked at me in a meaning fashion.

"Perhaps," I said, "you'd like me out of the way."

The inspector immediately opened the door for me. Melchett called out. "Come back when young Redding arrives, will you, vicar? You're a friend of his and you may have sufficient influence to persuade him to speak the truth."

I found my wife and Miss Marple with their heads together.

"We've been discussing all sorts of possibilities," said Griselda. "I wish you'd solve the case, Miss Marple, like you did the way Miss Wetherley's gill of picked shrimps disappeared. And all because it reminded you of some thing quite different about a sack of coals."

"You're laughing, my dear," said Miss Marple. "But after all, that is a very sound way of arriving at the truth. It's really what people call intuition and make such a fuss about. Intuition is like reading a word without having to spell it out. A child can't do that because it has had so little experience. But a grown-up person knows the word because they've seen it often before. You catch my meaning, vicar?"

"Yes," I said slowly. "I think I do. You mean that if a thing reminds you of something else—well, it's probably the same kind of thing."

"Exactly."

"And what precisely does the murder of Col. Protheroe remind you of?"

Miss Marple sighed. "That is just the difficulty. So many parallels come to the mind. For instance, there was Major Hargrave, a church warden and a man highly respected in every way. And all the time he was keeping a separate second establishment—a former housemaid, just think of it! And five children—actually five children—a terrible shock to his wife and daughter."

I tried hard to visualize Col. Protheroe in the role of secret sinner and failed.

"And then there was that laundry business," went on Miss Marple. "Miss Hartnell's opal pin—left most imprudently in a frilled blouse and sent to the laundry. And the woman who took it didn't want it in the least and wasn't by any means a thief. She simply hid it in another woman's house and told the police she'd seen this other woman take it. Spite, you know, sheer spite. It's an astonishing motive—spite."

"A man in it, of course. There always is."

This time I failed to see any parallel, remote. Miss Marple went on in a dreamy voice.

"And then there was poor Elwell's daughter—such a pretty creature, girl—tried to stifle her little brother. And there was the money for the choir boys' outing (before your time, vicar), actually taken by the organist. His wife was awfully in debt. Yes, this case makes one think of so many things—too many. It's very hard to arrive at the truth."

"I wish you would tell me," I said.

"Who were the seven suspects?"

"The seven suspects?"

"You said you could think of seven people who would—well, be glad of Colonel Protheroe's death."

"Did I? Yes, I remember I did."

"Was that true?"

"Of course it was true. But I mustn't mention names. You can think of them quite easily yourself, I am sure."

"Indeed I can't. There is Lettice Protheroe, I suppose, since she probably comes into money on her father's death. But it is absurd to think of her in such connection, and outside her I can think of nobody."

"And you, my dear?" said Miss Marple, turning to Griselda.

Rather to my surprise Griselda colored up. "Something very like ten started into her eyes. She clenched both her small hands."

"Oh!" she cried indignantly. "People are hateful hateful. They say."

"The beastly things they say."

I looked at her curiously. It is very unlike Griselda to be so upset. She noticed my glance and tried to smile.

"Don't look at me as though I were an interesting specimen you did not understand, Len? Don't let's get heated and wander from the point. I don't believe that it was Lawrence or Anne, and Lettice is out of the question. There must be some clue or other that would help us."

"There is the note, of course," said Miss Marple. "You will remember my saying this morning that that struck me as exceedingly peculiar."

"It seems to fix the time of his death with remarkable accuracy," I said. "And yet, is that possible? Mrs. Protheroe would only have just left the study. She would hardly have had time to reach the studio. The only way in which I can account for it is that she consulted her own watch and that his watch was slow. That seems to me a feasible solution."

"I have another idea," said Griselda. "Suppose, Len, that the clock had already been put back—no, that comes to the same thing—how stupid of me!"

"It hadn't been altered when I left," I said. "I remember comparing it with my watch. Still, as you say, that has no bearing on the present matter."

"What do you think, Miss Marple?" asked Griselda.

The old lady shook her head.

"My dear, I confess I wasn't thinking about it from that point of view at all. What strikes me as so curious, and has done from the first, is the subject matter of that letter."

"I don't see that," I said. "Colonel Protheroe merely wrote that he couldn't wait any longer—"

"At twenty minutes past six?" said Miss Marple. "Your maid, Mary, had already told him that you wouldn't be in till half past six at the earliest, and he had appeared to be quite willing to wait until then. And yet at twenty past six he sits down and says he 'can't wait any longer.'"

I stared at the old lady, feeling an increased respect for her mental powers. Her keen wits had seen what we had failed to perceive. It was an odd thing—a very odd thing.

"If only," I said, "the letter hadn't been dated."

Miss Marple nodded her head.

"Exactly," she said. "If it hadn't been dated."

I cast my mind back, trying to recall that sheet of note paper and the blurred scrawl, and at the top that neatly printed 6:30. Surely these figures were on a different scale to the rest of the letter.

I gave a gasp.

"Supposing," I said, "it wasn't dated. Supposing that round about 6:30 Colonel Protheroe got impatient and sat down to say he couldn't wait any longer. And as he was sitting there writing some one came in through the window—"

"Or through the door," suggested Griselda.

"He'd hear the door and look up," I said. "Colonel Protheroe was rather deaf, you remember," said Miss Marple.

"Yes, that's true. He wouldn't hear it. Whichever way the murderer came, he stole up behind the colonel and shot him. Then he saw the note and the clock and the idea came to him. He put 6:20 at the top of the letter and he altered the clock to 6:22. It was a clever idea. I think you, or so he would think, a perfect alibi."

"And what we want to find," said Griselda, "is someone who has a cast iron alibi for 6:20, but no alibi at all for—well, that isn't so easy. One can't fix the time."

"We can fix it within very narrow limits," I said. "Haydock places 6:30 as the outside limit of time. I suppose one could perhaps shift it to 6:35 from the reasoning we have just been following out; it seems clear that Protheroe would not have got impatient before 6:30. I think we can say we do know pretty well."

"Then that shot I heard—yes, I suppose it is quite possible. And I thought nothing about it—nothing at all. Most vexing. And yet, now I try to recollect, it does seem to me that it was different from the usual sort of shot one hears. Yes, there was a difference."

"A population of 500,000 by 1932" is Atlanta's slogan. Let's all pull together for a Greater Atlanta.

The Constitution's Weekly Business Review

EDITED BY M. D. GLEASON

There is hardly a need for a want that cannot be filled in Atlanta's stores and factories.

Experts Head Departments At Bohler & Shackelford

Bohler & Shackelford, auto repair shop at 21-23 Baker street, N. W., has expert men in charge of each department, and in the mechanical end this incorporated company has the latest precision tools and other equipment that enables them to do all repair work with accuracy.

Both Mr. Bohler and Mr. Shackelford make the statement that they never saw a car so badly wrecked or out of order that they could not put it in first-class running condition.

This firm has one man who does nothing, but true up wheels and straighten axles. The value of this expert's equipment alone would be enough to buy one of the highest priced cars.

The serious defect of having car wheels out of alignment is the cause of many serious accidents as well as being the chief reason tires wear out long before they should. Wheels not running true with each other also cause cars to pull to one side of the road.

Bohler & Shackelford have one man who gives all his time to the repairing and readjusting of shock absorbers. Another department is the duo painting department where four men keep busy all year painting all makes of cars.

This firm also has a welding and brazing department, and broken metal parts wherever they may be about a car are made strong like new again. The readjusting of valves is another strong feature done well by this firm.

"The improvements manufacturers are making in their latest models in the matter of closer fitting working parts," states Mr. Shackelford, "mean that the alighting and greasing of cars will be of more vital importance in the future. We have put in a high-pressure ball crank machine that will force the required lubricating oils and greases through the smallest openings of the new cars."

Mr. Bohler, senior member of the firm, is an expert who has received national prominence as far back as 1920, and many of the shop and office systems he put into practical use

ZABAN PREPARED FOR EMERGENCIES

Among the many services the Zaban Storage & Moving Company renders is their preparedness for extraordinary emergencies that may arise in the transporting of extra nice or valuable commodities from one part of the city to another or from one section of the country to another.

As an illustration the firm was selected to transfer all the samples to be seen at the Funeral Directors Association convention to be held this week in the auditorium, and while moving these delicate articles and setting them up in place, the company will still have men and rolling equipment to take care of the regular moving and storage business.

In the regular moving and storage business this firm has had the greatest season since entering business. The entire force upon several occasions has had much overtime work to do. The gratifying part of it to Mr. Zaban was the fact that many of the people he moved this fall were people he had moved before.

prior to that time are accepted as the standard practices at this time in all parts of this country.

Both Mr. Bohler and Mr. Shackelford and their score of able workmen take pride in every job leaving their big repair and readjusting plant.

Oil-O-Matic Development Reduces Fuel Consumption

W. M. Timmons, manager of the automatic oil heating department of the Randall Brothers Fuel Company, reports that by the addition of a new device called a diffuser to the Williams Oil-O-Matic burner a big saving in a winter's fuel supply will result.

"This new small attachment which has just been perfected by the Williams Oil-O-Matic Corporation," he said, "is the greatest since oil heating has been invented," says Mr. Timmons, "and it will mean that thousands of homeowners who were undecided until this time will change to clean automatic oil heat."

"The diffuser," continued Mr. Timmons, "is built in the Williams Oil-O-Matic and automatically creates a more perfect intermingling of the oil and air within the furnace—and a perfect even pressure. It will also permit the burning of a lower priced fuel oil, another saving that will cut a season's fuel cost."

"Another feature about this diffuser is the amazing part it plays in the operation of the Williams Oil-O-

Matic oil burner, for it practically eliminates what little noise the burner heretofore made. With the new device you do not hear the burner start, run or stop, and it will increase the popularity of the Oil-O-Matic."

"With the new diffuser on the junior Williams Oil-O-Matic the homeowner now has the opportunity of getting the latest improved automatic oil burner at a much lower price and at the same time one that will cost less to operate."

When asked about sales of fuel oil at this time, Mr. Timmons said the season started very good, as an automatic oil burner takes so little effort to start it that most all homeowners who have one like the comfort of the nice even heat they give and start them on the first cool or rainy days.

As the Randall Brothers located the Piedmont yard with the coals on one side and the battery of large oil storage tanks on the other, the firm is in a position to serve the major portion of the automatic oil burning homes in and around Atlanta, and handles the right grade of fuel oil for any make of oil burner.

CHARLES HUBBARD IN NEW LOCATION

When Charles A. Hubbard decided to move from his old location at 24 Piedmont avenue to 346 Courtland street, N. E., he did so mainly because he needed a much larger shop to take care of his ever increasing business.

In his new location, which was formerly the Yellow Cab headquarters, he has the largest place since he began business and is now better equipped than ever to make new tops, do upholstery work as well as make new bodies.

Mr. Hubbard conceived the idea three years ago that if he could do all the repair work on a car under one roof it would be so much more convenient for the car owners and would eliminate a good deal of duplication in the owner having so many people to figure up in completely reconditioning their cars.

So he surrounded himself with the best men he could get, in doing top work, upholstery, painting and general repairing. He says it is the satisfaction he is rendering his customers that is causing him to make these periodical expansions.

In the painting department the experts go at this in a workmanlike manner and prepare a car properly to receive the selected colors and then the work is done as fast as it is consistent to do the best kind of painting.

ONE LONG RAINY SPELL!

Textile Industry Bright Spot In Confusing Business Week

BY CLAUDE A. JAGGER.
Associated Press Financial Editor.
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(P)—A bright spot in a week of confusing and discouraging developments in business and finance has been indicated by a brisk acceleration of activity in the textile industry.

This is viewed as significant by the Annals, which says, "an outstanding characteristic of the 1921 depression was that revival in the textile industry preceded recovery of business in general."

Pessimism, nevertheless, was reported by many observers as having reached the bland depths of 1914 and 1921, when few could foresee the periods of unparalleled prosperity which were in the making. The premature forecasts of recovery so numerous a few months ago were said to be making illusions difficult to dispel at this time. Political disturbances abroad, which might be viewed with equanimity in prosperous times, have caused much nervousness.

CURB LIST BADLY WORN BY HECTIC SELLING

BY JOHN L. COOLEY.
Associated Press Financial Writer.
NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(P)—Wearied by the most tumultuous trading since November, the Curb market welcomed the holiday tomorrow. Brokerage circles regarded the movement of prices last Friday as indicating at least a temporary selling climax, although it was pointed out that a reaction from the rally was inevitable.

The heaviest selling of the year came last week, sending hundreds of active shares to new lows for the year or considerably longer. The downward movement, which had been the general trend for a month, was accelerated by the liquidation of stocks in companies having interests in turbulent Brazil, notably American Foreign Power, Brazilian Traction and Electric Bond & Share. The latter figured in the selling because of its holdings in American & Foreign Power.

Early in the week a comparatively few shares accounted for a large percentage of the daily turnover, but as the decline broadened the entire list was carried sharply lower. Suspension of Prince & Whately for alleged insolvency and the subsequent liquidation in stocks with which it was associated, especially the firm's investment in American Telephone & Telegraph Company, 16th Dividend.

This regular quarterly dividend of Two Dollars and Twenty-Five Cents ($2.25) per share will be paid on October 15, 1930, to stockholders of record at the close of business on September 20, 1930.

HOW TO RECOGNIZE A GOOD UTILITY BOND

No. 1 of a series of advertisements

SALT WITHOUT SAVOR

INVESTORS have made a fetish of assets—as though assets in and of themselves were a guarantee of safety.

Very little thought will demonstrate that assets without earnings are of no value. A building without tenants—a farm without crops—a railroad without passengers—a power plant without customers—all may represent huge expenditures of money. But without earnings they are utterly worthless and of no value—they are as salt which has lost its savor.

Assets are valuable only as they are tangible evidence of facilities to produce earnings—a building to hold occupants, a farm to raise crops, a railroad to carry passengers, a plant to produce power.

But present earnings alone are not sufficient—there must be assurance of continued earnings—earnings whose future is assured by growth, by continued need, by increasing service.

On the basis of this fundamental principle, what may ordinarily be regarded as less secure obligations of one industry or business, may be far more secure than those of another industry customarily regarded as of prime safety.

The safety of first mortgages, secured bonds, debenture bonds, or obligations of any kind therefore is measured only by their claim upon the continued earnings of the particular business concerned.

Thorough students of investments now generally agree that the public utility industry offers a more stable and secure field for long time investment than practically any other major field, including securities of those industries in which savings banks, insurance companies and other institutional investors now make large commitments from force of habit or favorable legal status.

Accordingly, we have applied a series of basic criteria, such as are used by scrutinizing investors, banks and institutions, in the evaluation of the debenture bonds of leading public utility companies. These criteria will be discussed in a series of advertisements.

Persons desiring immediately the complete set of 10 charts with the letter showing how to weigh the worth of such public utility bonds, may obtain them by writing to

HOW IT BEGAN... By Russ Murphy

The Printer's Devil..

WHEN PRINTING WAS NEW, TYPE-SETTING WAS NOT NOTED FOR ITS ACCURACY... IN 1561 A PIOUS MONK, PUBLISHED A BOOK CALLED "THE ANATOMY OF THE MASS," ALTHOUGH IT HAD ONLY 172 PAGES, THERE WERE SO MANY MISTAKES THAT HE WAS OBLIGED TO ADD 15 PAGES TO CORRECT THEM... THESE HE ATTRIBUTED TO SPECIAL INSTIGATION OF THE DEVIL, BUT THEY TURNED OUT TO BE THE WORK OF AN APPRENTICE LEARNING THE TRADE. SINCE THEN APPRENTICES HAVE BEEN CALLED PRINTER'S DEVILS.

COTTON GOODS SALES HOLD FAIRLY STEADY

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Sales of print cloths and sheetings, broadcloths and fancies and towels were greater this week than last week, but the total of sales was somewhat less as the volume of colored goods sales fell off. Sales were shown in excess of actual production, however.

Though print cloths, in general, were not particularly active during the week ending October 12, the demand for construction, the 80-80s. Almost all the large users seemed to want buy goods for prompt shipment the early part of the week and, as a result, October-November goods were being pretty thoroughly cleaned up at 7-12 cents, with actual spots now commanding a premium. This business has lent backbone to the other numbers so that, beyond some unimportant second-hand offerings, prices on the other print cloths are being held firm. In the drills and sheetings, Mill margins have improved, but they have improved only because production has been kept down. They can be improved still further if production can be kept within reasonable limits for another 60 to 90 days and all the gain that has been made can be lost by too hasty increase in operations. We know that our mill friends are well aware of these facts and we think that they intend to keep the situation safely and intelligently in hand.

There has been a week of disturbed conditions in the financial markets, but raw commodity markets have shown a steady tone with considerable advances in rubber, copper and sugar. Many believe that the declines in commodities are practically over.

In a general way, the outlook for textiles is favorable, heavy reduction in mill stocks, little, if any, increase in demand, retail trade making satisfactory showing under existing conditions. No doubt we saw the peak of the autumn buying in September, as is usually the case, but we feel confident we can count on continued demand for another month to six weeks. That will carry us to the approach of the holiday season and business during December will be governed by conditions bearing upon the outlook for early 1931, of which there will be signs by that time. It seems to us that wants for the next 60 to 90 days should be covered for there is little or no risk in current prices and some likelihood of gain.

Kidnaping Charged

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 12.—(P)—South Carolina constables today asked police in several southern states to look out for Esther Furcorn, 17-year-old Anderson College student, and Willie Willie, 25, whom they charge kidnaped the girl at Anderson Friday afternoon. Both are residents of Grover, N. C.

CONDITIONS IMPROVE IN DROUTH SECTIONS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(P)—A slight improvement in the drouth situation was reported today by Dr. C. W. Warburton, secretary of the federal drouth relief committee.

In a review of drouth developments during the past week Dr. Warburton said most of the corn crop was safe from frost damage and that in the area from the Rocky mountains to the Appalachians raising conditions improved pastures and seeded grains.

"The rainfall has not been sufficient, however," he added, "to restore the low water supply, which constitutes a serious problem in this area." "The middle Atlantic states," he continued, "are still unrelieved by rain. Low water supplies on many of the farms in this section are causing concern. County agents report that pastures and seeded grains have made little or no growth in these states."

TARZAN AND THE LOST EMPIRE No. 79

By Edgar Rice Burroughs

It all happened so quickly and was over so quickly that scarcely had Caesar's shriek rung through the Colosseum when he lay dead at the foot of the carved throne, and Gabula, the assassin, in a single leap had cleared the wall and was running across the sand to von Harben.

"I have avenged, Bwana!" cried the black man. "No matter what they do, you are avenged." A great groan arose from the audience and then a cheer as someone shouted, "Caesar is dead!" A flash of hope came to the breast of von Harben. "Now is our chance," he whispered.

"Follow me!" cried Mallius Lepus to the prisoners. The guards had been stunned by the murder of the emperor. Everything was in confusion. Mallius Lepus started on a run toward the gateway and the shouting prisoners fell in behind him. No effort was made to stop them.

The sudden rush of the escaping prisoners so upset the guards beneath the Colosseum that they were easily overpowered and a moment later the prisoners found themselves in the streets of Castrum Mare. Von Harben, Mallius Lepus and Gabula dashed off together to find a hiding place.
